GAG RULE IN PROSPECT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Administration forces in the senate today threatened to invoke gag rule to end the debate on the Norris motion displacing the ship subsidy bill in favor of farm credit legislation.

Senator Jones, Washington, in charge of the subsidy, tried in vain to get the senate to fix a time to vote on Norris' motion. Senator King, Utah, blocked a proposal to vote at 4 p. m. today, and Senator Reed, Missouri refused to accede to a suggestion for a vote at 4 p. m. Wednesday. Reed indicated he would not approve the fixing of any time.

"I can at any time move to table the Norris motion," Jones then warned. "While I do not wish to invoke his measure, I shall be forced to do so within a very short time unless an agreement is reached to end this debate and vote."

A motion to table the Norris proposal would automatically cut off all debate and result in an immediate showdown between the factions favoring the subsidy and that which wants the Norris credits bill brought forward.

FIND BOMB AT KING'S PALACE

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The police announced that a hand grenade found in a garbage wagon at Buckingham palace was unloaded and evidently a discarded relic of the world war or the Irish rebellion.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Police today discovered a Mills hand grenade on a garbage wagon used for cleaning out ash cans at Buckingham palace, the home of the royal family, according to the Evening Standard.

It was immediately turned over to experts for examination by police who began an investigation to find out how it came to be in the wagon.

The police, however, professed to place little importance in the find, declaring the grenade probably was a war relic thrown in the wagon while it was going to the palace.

The examining experts refused to say whether the grenade was empty or loaded.

EXPLOSION WRECKS BALTIMORE HOMES

House of Patrolman and Adjoining Structure Destroyed by Dynamite Probably Set Off by Bootleggers.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 19.—The adjoining homes of Patrolmen John Eberling and the Misses Caroline and Pauline Reuter were wrecked by an explosion at 3 a. m. today.

Police an ddetectives who rushed to the scene were investigating a report that the policeman's home had been dynamited by persons who suspected he caused a raid on a still which was being run on a lot in the rear of his home.

WOODRUFF WAS "WATCHED"

Representative From Michigan Says He Was Shadowed After Attacking Daugherty.

WASHINGTON Dec. 19.—Appearing as voluntary prosecutor in the Daugherty impeachment proceedings, Representative Woodruff, Michigan, republican, told the house judiciary committee today he had "circumstantial evidence" to the effect that agents of the department of justice "shadowed" him last summer, after he had made speeches attacking Attorney General Daugherty's conduct of war fraud cases.

CHECKS OVER MERGER.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace will arrive in Chicago late today to go over final details of the proposition for sale of Morris and company, packers, to J. Ogden Armour. According to best information, the transfer will take place at midnight December 31. Auditors checking up the assets of Morris and company completed their work today, while financial aides of Armour were in New York handling the money matters.

WOULD BAN TAX EXEMPTIONS

House Enacts Resolution Proposing Ban on Further Issuance of Such Securities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The house today enacted a resolution proposing a constitutional ban on the further issuance of tax exempt securities by the federal government and the states.

There was a brief scuffle over the rule making the resolution in order, but it was adopted, 118 to 52 with the house dividing along party lines.

MORE DETAILS OF MASSACRE

EYE-WITNESSES TELL OF NON-UNION MINERS' DEATHS.

Five Defendants From Herrin Accused of Other Acts of Violence in Attempt to Show Conspiracy.

MARION, Ill., Dec. 19.—Grilling of state's witnesses in the first Herrin massacre trial today brought out additional details of the "reign of terror" that enveloped Williamson county last June.

Eye witnesses stories of how twenty non-union coal miners met their death at the hands of a mob of 500 angered union men formed a recital of horror, brutality and atrocities.

One by one the witnesses answered the call of State's Attorney Delos Duty and came forward to add their link in the chain of events as they occurred on the "bloody 22nd of June."

The five defendants, brought to trial on the specific charge of murdering Howard Hoffman, were accused of other acts of violence in an attempt by the prosecution to prove that they were parties to the conspiracy.

Robert Officer, one of the non-union miners who escaped the massacre, today told of events leading up to the siege of tse Lester strip mine and the slayings.

"Union men were hired at the mine to repair equipment until June 13, when they were discharged by Superintendent McDowell," Officer said.

"Non-union workers arrived two days later and started stripping coal and we shipped about 700 cars of coal before June 21, when the outbreaks began and operation of the mine was discontinued."

KEARNEY BOY IS KILLED

Report That Harold Bloomington Overcome by Fumes in Refrigerator Car.

KEARNEY, Neb., Dec. 19.—Harold Bloomington of this city was accidentally killed at Sand Point, Id., Sunday, according to word received by his father. The body is being shipped to this city for burial. Meager information as to the accident indicate that Bloomington was riding inside a refrigerator car and was overcome by fumes from the charcoal burner in the car.

Pinned Under Load of Hay.

KEARNEY, Neb., Dec. 19.—Lyle Fay is lying at St. Luke's hospital, suffering with a fractured skull and concussion of the brain, the result of an accident which befell him Sunday on his farm south of Kearney. Fay was starting home with a load of alfalfa, when the hayrack tipped over. He was pinned underneath the load. His small son, accompanying him, secured help from a neighboring farmer and Fay was quickly transferred to the hospital here. Attending surgeons state his injuries may prove fatal.

HONEYMOON OF ENGLISH PAIR SHADOWED BY GREEK TRAGEDY

NEW YORK.—A fearsome ending of the American honeymoon visit of Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten, who sailed Saturday for England, was caused by the news of the impending trial and probable execution for the Anatolian disaster, Prince Andrew is a brother-in-law of Lord Mountbatten, since the Princess Alice is Mountbatten's sister. Fear is also expressed for the safety of Prince Christopher, Prince Andrew's brother, the husband of the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, widow of the American tin plate king, who had been preparing to sail for America early in December to plead for money for Greek refugees, but may not now be permitted to leave the country.

ASK A PROBE OF HOLLYWOOD

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Spurred into action by the publicity given the story of Wallace Reid's enslavement by drugs, Chief of Police Oaks today declared war on drug traffickers.

He appeared before the city council and asked an immediate emergency appropriation of $10,000 to wage merciless war on drug peddlers.

"Every known brand of drug, including opium, coccaine, morphine, heroin, hashish, yen shee and marijuana is used in Los Angeles," he declared.

He estimated there are at least 10,000 addicts in the city.

"Over 13 per cent of the criminals arrested here use drugs in some form," he told the councilmen "and police have a record of approximately 500 peddlers who are either serving time or who have served time in jail."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Wallace Reid, in his fight against enslavement by drugs, has the complete sympathy of Will H. Hays, head of the organized motion picture industry.

That was made clear today when it was announced that Hays is to be the first visitor to see Reid when he is able to receive visitors in his hospital room.

Indications were that it will be several days before this can be done.

Hays' announcement that he "would shake Reid by the hand" was taken thruout Hollywood as marking a new turn in the attitude of the men who manage the movies towards the stars. It meant that Hays was to give Reid more than a fighting chance and that the "flapper's idol", will not be disciplined in his profession, for his alleged indiscretions.

It also was considered here as, in a way, setting the example which Reid's friends hope the public will follow—that of forgetting the past and giving a sporting chance to a man who faltered and then proved big enough to fight himself loose from the things that were enslaving him.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—With the dope evil so graphically emphasized by Wallace Reid's serious condition, Methodist ministers of southern California today urged the city council to appoint a commisison to find out the truth about Hollywood. So thoroly would they probe the dope situation that either stories afloat be proved true or "the good name of the city and industry vindicated." The ministrial union is expected to take similar action.

Reid, formerly a robust man of 200 pounds, has faded away to 130 pounds during his recent relapse, it was learned today.

"As soon as we think he is in condition to receive the news, I am going to tell him everything that we have done," Dorothy Davenport, his wife stated.

"I know it will make him supremely happy—just as happy as it has made us—now that it is all over. It will lift a great load from his mind.

"Only the other day, as he lay in his bed so weak he could hardly take my hand, he said to me:

"'If I only live thru this I'm never again going to have anything in my life that I have to hide from the world.

"'When a fellow lies in bed and can't sleep he thinks over his whole life and everything he's done, and sees what a fool he has made of himself. I know it's hard to live the way you want to and all that, but believe me if your boy gets well he's going to live a life out in the open where the whole world can see everything he does. When I get well I am going to tear in and be one of the best citizens in this town'."

Wally's first visitor, it was learned today, will be Will H. Hays, head of the movie industry.

"As soon as he can see visitors," Hays declared, "I want to go to that little hospital room where Reid is making his great fight for health, and shake him by the hand. He has done a great thing, a courageous thing."

"You don't know how happy a visit from Mr. Hays will make Wally," his wife said. "It will be the official stamp of approval that his fight was worth while."

Messages of encouragement, sympathy and advice are pouring in from all sources, but perhaps the most deeply human one came today when a big, strapping soldier, the picture of health, knocked at the door of the Reid home.

Holding his cap hesitatingly in hand, he asked to see Mrs. Reid and was admitted.

"Tell him it's a message from a man who made the fight," he said.

Huge Seizure.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The largest seizure of narcotics in New York for several years was made on a Brooklyn pier by federal customs agents today.

The officers, investigating a consignment of fish, discovered among the barrels eleven large cans of morphine and cocaine, each can being five inches high and two feet diameter.

The "dope" valued at many thousands of dollars, was said to have been smuggled in with the cargo of a French freighter from Spain.

PRETTY DIVORCEE MAY NOT WIN SUIT

Omaha Officers Are Unable to Locate Wealthy Cattle Rancher of Valentine With a Court Summons.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 19.—Suit for $100,000 heart balm filed in Omaha by Mrs. Emma J. Anderson of Omaha against John Bachelor, cattle baron of Valentine, Neb., may avail the pretty divorcee nothing.

Officers so far have been unable to serve the wealthy rancher with a court summons.

Attorneys in the case stated yesterday morning a new suit may have to be filed in Valentine.

Bachelor left Omaha Saturday just eight hours ahead of the process server. He checked out of the Paxton hotel at 8 Saturday morning.

"If we don't get a chance to catch Bachelor when he comes to Omaha again with a shipment of cattle, we shall file the suit in his home county," Fred Wright, attorney for Mrs. Anderson, indicated.

The pretty divorcee has withdrawn into seclusion.

Her mother, Mrs. August Wolf, 2514 South Eleventh street, denied she is living with her parents.

"You will have to see my attorney," was about all Bachelor would say over long distance telephone from Valentine.

His attorney is a Valentine man and was said to be out of town.

Bachelor admitted over the telephone that they have reached no decision as to what they will do in regard to Mrs. Anderson's suit.

"Did you make love to her?" he was asked.

"See my attorney," came the invariable reply.

"Well, how would your attorney know of your love-making?" Bachelor was pressed.

"Oh, I'm thru," he shouted, and hung up the receiver.

Mrs. Wolf declined to tell where her daughter is staying.

Neighbors of the Wolf family were divided in opinion as to whether Mrs. Anderson is hiding in an exclusive apartment or staying with a sister.

The petition for heart balm is one of the shortest of that nature ever filed in a Douglas county district court.

The divorcee alleges Bachelor is worth $500,000, that he courted her for six months, that they agreed and planned for their marriage December 11, put it off three days and then Bachelor told her "things were all off and he was going to Valentine without her."

Good Pay on Auto Licenses.

NEBRASKA CITY, Dec. 19.—That people will pay for automobile licenses quicker than any other form of debt is demonstrated by the receipts at the county treasurer's office of Otoe county, where it has been shown that many persons called poor or slow pay have paid for automobile tags, before paying their personal taxes, or their store bills.

KLAN STARTS A CAMPAIGN

Officials Seek Interview With Harding to Counteract Criticism Against Organizaton.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Newly elected leaders of the ku klux klan, as part of a campaign to counteract criticism against their organization, have called at the white house to deny that it is responsible for many recent outbreaks of lawlessness.

A klan delegation now in Washington, which is headed by H. W. Evans, imperial wizard, called at the white house last night and sought an interview with the president to deny the charges made by Governors Parker and Allen and other public officials. Whether the klansmen saw the president was not learned.

Judge Favors Dance in Schools.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Dec. 19.—Judge Bischoff of the county court declared today, in a talk to the students of the high school at convocation period, that he favored allowing shcool dances in the school auditorium or gymnasium, and that no person should kick on the amount of taxes paid for school purposes as long as the schools were doing the good work they were. The judge's remarks were received with wild applause by the students.

MISSING AVIATOR IS FOUND AT A RANCH

Henry Boonstra, Who Alighted on Porcupine Ridge, Managed to Make Way to Home on Mountain Side.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 19.—Henry G. Boonstra, the aviator who was lost with his mail plane since Friday, and for whom twenty airplanes were searching the mountains, has been found at the Rigby ranch four and a half miles from Porcupine Ridge, northeast of Coalville. Altho he had suffered severely from the shaking in landing on the mountain ridge, the aviator is uninjured.

His plane was located on top of the high mountain ridge yesterday by Pilot Lester F. Bishop of the air mail service. Porcupine ridge is eighty miles east and thirty-eight miles north of Salt Lake City.

The aviators report that the plane is not badly damaged and can be easily repaired. Boonstra was caught in a furious blizzard and found he was making little progress. His plane was gradually forced to earth, but he did not realize how close he was to the mountain side. His landing jarred him badly, but in the midst of the blizzard he was able to crawl from the machine and make his way to the ranch house.

DRY CHRISTMAS AT HOLLYWOOD

Federal Agents Seize 300 Cases of Liquor for Movie Town.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Dec. 19.—Federal prohibition agents today predicted a dry Christmas for Hollywood as a result of the seizure here during the early morning of 300 cases of liquor consigned to the motion picture town.

The liquor included Scotch whisky and a quantity of choice champagne.

Thomas Davis and Robert La Salle were arrested and the motor truck in which they were alleged to have been found moving the liquor towards its destination was confiscated.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Prince George, son of King George, was operated on for appendicitis today. The operation was successful.

Kearney Pastor Resigns.

KEARNEY, Neb., Dec. 19.—Rev. E. V. McCormick, pastor of the Christian church, has tendered his resignation, which is to become effective on the first of January. Rev. McCormick has been pastor of the local church for the past three years and made quite a creditable showing during that time both in lifting the church debt and increasing the congregation membership. He goes from here to Kansas City, Mo., to fill a pulpit.

HOTEL SUIT TRANSFERRED

JUDGE LESLIE ORDERS CASE TO FEDERAL COURT.

Five Hundred Thousand Dollar Suit Brought by Nebraska Hotel Company Against Eugene C. Eppley.

OMAHA, Dec. 19.—Judge Leslie of the Douglas county district court today signed an order transferring to federal court the $500,000 suit of the Nebraska Hotel company against Eugene C. Eppley, proprietor of the Fontenelle hotel.

The suit was brought in an effort to oust Eppley, to force him to give up the least on the building and possession of the building and furnishings. The hotel company also claims $500,000 in damages from Eppley.

No date for trial of the case in federal court will be set for some time.

JERSEY WOMAN MURDERED

Mrs. Catherine Burbol Found With Head Crushed on Road Near Home.

BUTLER, N. J., Dec. 19.—Mrs. Catherine Burbol, fifty-one, was found apparently murdered on a road near here today.

The woman's blood-stained clothes were strewn about and there were marks of a struggle about the spot. Charles Burbol, her husband, declared he did not know how Mrs. Burbol came to be at the place where she was killed. She started out yesterday for a shopping trip, he said. She had been both stabbed and shot in the abdomen and her face had been partly crushed by a heavy blow.

LAUSANNE PARLEY TO CONTINUE

Curzon Meant Only Conference on Straits to Be Terminated.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 19.—Following an ultimatum served on Turk y today by Lord Curzon that they must decide to accept the allies' proposals for freedom of the Dardanelles tomorrow or the parley would be ended, it was explained later that Curzon meant—in serving his ultimatum on the Turks—that the conference regarding settlement of the straits would be terminated tomorrow unless Ismet accepted the allied proposal. However, it was said, the conference would continue to discuss other phases of the near east settlement.

REWARD FOR BANDITS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 19.—Federal reserve bank authorities here, with approval of Washington officials, today offered a reward for information leading to the arrest of bandits who robbed the Danver mint.

A reward of $5,000 will be paid for each bandit convicted, reserve bank officials here announced. They believed five men made the daring raid.

Santa to Railroad Children.

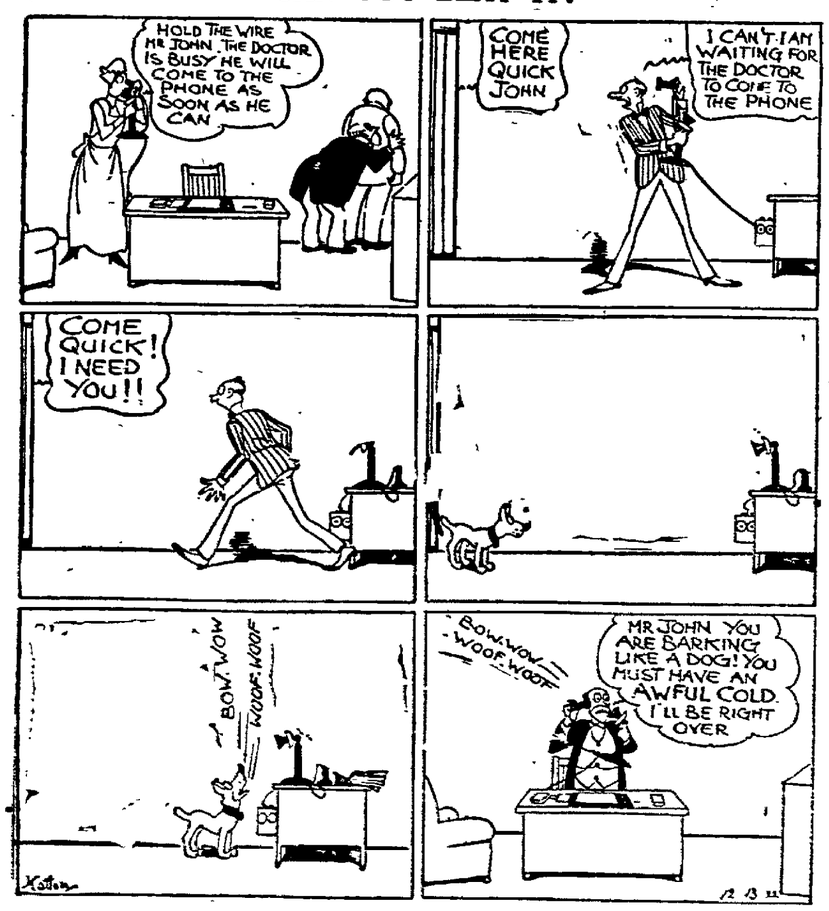

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 19.—This city has a real philanthropist, among the juvenile railway life, in a Japanese railway cook named M. Inonge, familiarly known only by the name of "George." He is the cook on the Burlington superintendent's private car, fifty years old, with on relatives in America, and has been in Wymore for the past ten years. He can scarcely read or speak English, but he has great sport in distributing candy and Japanese made presents among railway children whom he knows. He gets the things from Japanese dealers in Denver, and has already distributed several dollars worth among about twenty-five families so far this Christmas.

Blood Poison From Injury.

WYMORE, Neb., Dec. 19.—Charles D. Robinson, railway passenger brakeman running between Wymore and Concordia, has his right hand badly afflicted with blood poison as a result of a minor injury three weeks ago, and has been unable to use the hand for the past fixe days, and has been taken to his home in Concordia. He cut the hand on a cream can he was handling three weeks ago.

Nebraska City—While walking along the Missouri Pacific tracks, Charles Fullerton of Percival, Ia., was struck and knocked down by a chunk of coal that fell from the train of the Burlington road, as it passed over the overhead bridge at Third street and Fourth corso. Altho badly bruised, he was not seriously injured and proceeded on his way without medical attention.

BIG REWARD FOR ROBBERS

NO TRACE OF MINT BANDITS

Center Search for Seven Men in Denver.

Authorities Now Believe That Desperadoes Separated and Are in Hiding Near Scene of Robbery.

DENVER, Dec. 19.—Officials of the federal reserve bank here today asked that a sharp watch be kept for new $5 bills, which made up the $200,000 stolen by bandits from in front of the mint here yesterday.

The serial numbers of the bills are from 20,852,001 to 20,876,000 and from 20,940,001 to 20,956,000.

DENVER, Dec. 19.—The city of Denver today offered a reward of $10,000 for the capture, dead or alive, of any one of the bandits who yesterday killed a federal reserve bank guard and escaped with $200,000 from in front of the United States mint here.

The city offered $2,500 for any information leading to arrest and conviction of any of the bandits.

Police and federal officers have centered the search for the men in Denver. Officials were becoming more convinced that the bandits, instead of leaving the city, separated and are in hiding here.

Two automobile loads of policemen were stationed in the neighborhood of the mint for an hour this morning. They refused to state what their purpose was. After an hour they returned to headquarters.

Rooming houses in the poorer section of the city were searched and underworld dives were gone thru by officers.

Into the mountains and plains of Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico one of the west's greatest "man hunts" extended today for the bandits.

Officers have three leads to follow in their efforts to find the men. One is the fact that one of the bandits as he clung to the running board of the speeding car as it roared away from in front of the mint, was seen to slump in a heap with blood pouring from a wound in his cheek. His companions dragged him onto the car which did not slacken speed.

The other is a bloody sawed-off shotgun used by the bandits and left lying on the curb after Linton had been killed by a charge of buckshot. Fingerprints on the stock of the gun may lead to the discovery of the men, it was believed by police.

The third is the fact that the loot obtained by the men was all in new five dollar bills, fifty packages, each totaling $4,000. The number on all the bills is known by bank officials who point out that when the bandits attempt to put the money into circulation they can be traced thru the newly minted currency.

Watch Highways.

All principal highways in this section are being watched while forest rangers and state police search the mountain peaks and canons for some trace of the men. It was believed here that if the bandits who, according to federal officials, staged the first robbery of its kind in history—in front of a United States mint—escaped into the mountains they will be difficult to pursue.

Officials expect a battle if the bandits are found together. Their sensational holdup yesterday was much like the work of the famous Lewis gang members who operated in the middle west a few years ago and which was finally broken up by the capture of its principal members in a gun battle near Colorado Springs in which two officers were killed.

In case the robbers headed east into the eastern Colorado and western Kansas prairies, it was believed that some trace of them will be found within a few days. The bandits undoubtedly have changed automobiles by this time, officials think, and little hope of their capture by means of identification of the license tag on the bandit car yesterday, it is believed.

If the wounded bandit is seriously hurt, police say, his companions will have to take him to a physician and this, they believe, will give them the best lead to follow in their efforts to capture the gang.

Trusted Employe.

Linton, the slain guard, had been an employe of the bank for years and had safely transported hundreds of thousands of dollars from the mint to banks in his years of service.

All yesterday afternoon crowds of curious people thronged around the mint. Police were stationed in the street to prevent a traffic jam.

It was Denver's greatest robbery and created the greatest sensation here in years.

Hundreds of telephone calls have been received by state and federal agents from persons outside Denver telling of seeing a "large speeding touring car" yesterday shortly after the battle occurred. Thus far none of this information has led to any tangible clew.

Chief of Detectives Rinker expressed the belief that perhaps Eva Lewis, member of the notorious Lewis gang that operated near Kansas City and in western Missouri a few years ago was connected with the holdup. Eva was released from the state prison three weeks ago after serving a sentence for her participation in a hold up and gun battle near Colorado Springs two years ago when two officers were slain by members of the Lewis gang. However, she was questioned late yesterday at her home near Denver and authorities are satisfied she knew nothing of the affair.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—All roads into Chicago were watched today following the receipt by police of a tip that the bandits who robbed the Denver mint of $200,000 were headed this way.

Federal authorities declared they received the tip from a woman who refused to divulge her name. The informant said members of the gang were from Chicago.

Plans were made to search all transcontinental trains.

MAYOR TAKES UP NEW DUTY

AUTOMATICALLY BECOMES HEAD OF STREET DEPARTMENT.

Governor-Elect May, However, Make Short Call in View of Fact That He Has Three Days' Pay Coming.

Mayor Zehrung on Tuesday assumed charge of the street department. He succeeds Mr. Bryan, resigned. The executive will retain his own offices. There's little for him to do in a street department way. The muny coal bins are empty and public improvement work is practically shut down for the winter.

Governor-elect Bryan may be back some day. He has three days pay coming. A check for $17.44 will be ready for him Thursday. This is at the rate of $5.48 a day for 365 days. On the same 365-day basis, he will draw $20.55 a day as governor, a big increase over his salary as councilman. And he will have a mansion free of cost. Also free gas, free air, free light and the services of William. This does not refer to his brother William. This is William the veteran caretaker. Lieutenant Governor Barorws does not figue the governor's pay at $20.55 a day. He drops t heSundays and treats only with working days. This method permits a greater per day pay—$23.99.

Possibly the next street department head will want to move down on the second floor where Commisisoner Hensley lived for so long a time. Mr. Bryan took third floor quarters because it brought him closely in touch with the engineering department and the coal office on days when he happened to drop in at the city hall. It also removed him from an office located between Mayor Zehrung and Commissoiner Wright at a time when the recall threat hung like a dark cloud over the heads of those members.

City hall attaches are counting on more or less activity on the part of the governor-elect in connection with the spring city election. Some go so far as to predict that he will pick 'em by hand.

INQUEST OVER SASEK BODY

To Determine How Miller, Found With Eleven Bullet Holes in Breast, Came to Death.

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 19.—County Attorney Vasey has determined to hold an inquest at Dewitt Friday over the remains of James Sasek, Dewitt miller, who was found dead Sunday afternoon near Dewitt with eleven bullet holes in his breast from an automatic rifle. Funeral services were held this morning, a jury being selected prior to the services and viewing the body

ANCIENT ROLE IS REVERSED

STATE AND THE RAILROADS IN OPPOSITE VIEWS.

Attorney General Says Companies Have Large Amount of Property and They Retort Not That Much at All.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—The state of Nebraska and the three railroads that are contesting their state tax assessments starred in new roles in federal court today. Usually, when the railroads are before the state railway commission they go the limit in proving what a vast amount of property they have in order to justify the charging of higher rates than exist. At the same time the state tries to prove that the values claimed are not in the least what the railroads claim, and that the actual figures are much below those set up by the carriers. That is the usual thing in a rate case.

These roles were reversed in federal court today, with the state trying to prove that the railroads have all kinds of property and the carriers shaking their heads and declaring vehemently that they do not possess nearly so much. The reason is that this is a hearing to establish the amount of property upon which the railroads shall pay taxes. The state is trying to justify its valuation of 137 millions for the Burlington, 38 millions for the Northwestern and 12 millions for the Omaha road, which the Burlington says is 125 per cent of the actual value, the Northwestern 15 per cent and the Omaha 141 per cent. The higher the valuation the higher the taxes.

The State Has a Lot of Data.

Back in 1909 the state railway commission started in to make a physical valuation of the railroads. It prepared a questionnaire and sent a copy to all the roads. At that time the popular idea of valuing railroads was to find out how much it would cost then and there to reproduce them, and then deduct from that figure whatever depreciation had occurred. It was along these lines that the questions were framed. Most of the railroads filed a lot of data. The Burlington says that the commission found the value of its property to be $104,000,000, and the commission says it never did.

Because of Judge Woodrough's interest in this section of the case, the state this morning introduced in evidence all of this data which Hugh Lamaster, assistant attorney general, says will prove the state's claim that the taxation board's figures are fully justified and that the railroads are undervalued in about the same proportion as other property.

This data supplies a basis upon which to figure out what the reports of the roads themselves show to be a fair value of their property in Nebraska for rate-making purposes, which ought to be good, the state claims, for taxation purposes also. All that is necessary is to add to the figures of value given by the roads at that time the sums their annual reports filed since then show to have been in vested from year to year.

Argued and Submitted.

Argument then began on the application to enjoin the collection of excess taxes. The Northwestern claimed the valuation figures of a decade ago are too old to be worth anything, while the Burlington said the 104 million value shown then, with proper additions of investments since made show much less than 137 millions, the value for taxation purposes made by the state. They argued that they had shown conclusively that farm lands are grossly undervalued, and pointed out that the state's affidavits proved this fact. Being overvalued themselves they insisted that the court's duty was plain.

For the state Mr. Lamaster said that the railroads were undervalued and had no basis for their claim for a reduction in taxes. He pointed out that in similar litigation years ago the courts had held that a taxpayer cannot get relief from taxation by pointing out another taxpayer was undervalued. The answer to this was that the state had followed a persistent and continuous policy of undervaluation of farm lands.

Mr. Lamaster also asserted that the federal court had no jurisdiction because the statutes provided for an appeal to the state supreme court from unsatisfactory decrees of the state board of taxation. The roads insisted the statutes were silent as to procedure of that sort or how an error of the board can be corrected.

The argument is expected to end early in the afternoon, after which the Northwestern Bell rate injunction case against the railway commission will be taken up.

NORTHWESTERN PAYS TAXES

Hands Over to City Finance Head Forty Per Cent Deducted From 1921 Total.

The Chicago & Northwestern railroad is paying up the 40 per cent which it held back from the 1921 tax assessment. Commissioner of Finance Dayton is in receipt of a voucher for $1,028.10 which covers the withheld city tax plus interest. It is understood that the corporation held back on city and county taxes thruout the state on the ground that the 1921 assessments were discriminatory as against this road

In a letter to the finance head, railroad authorities set forth reference to a court decision holding that the corporation had no right to withhold and must pay in full.

BANKER'S SENTENCE CUT BY STATE BOARD

CHARLES MAIXNER.

Charles Maixner of Lincoln, pleaded guilty to forgery in the management of a bank in Saunders county, and was sentenced on three counts to serve from one to twenty years in the penitentiary. The sentences to be served consecutively. The board of pardons has commuted this to run concurrently. This makes Maixner eligible to parole as he has served more than the minimum sentence of one year.

THE WEATHER.

For Lincoln and Vicinity: Fair tonight and Wednesday; somewhat warmer tonight, colder Wednesday afternoon or night.

For Nebraska. Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; warmer extreme east and colder west portion tonight; colder Wednesday.

LINCOLN GAS RATE LOWER

LESS THAN MUNICIPAL RATE CHARGED IN OMAHA.

And Local Company Has Paid Nearly Four Hundred Thousand Dollars in Taxes During the Past Ten Years.

Look at your gas receipt. You are paying in December $1.18 per thousand cubic feet, the lowest rate since the days of dollar gas. And in spite of the fact that from 7 to 8 cents out of the revenue from every thousand feets old, goes for taxes, your rate today is less than the Omaha rate where the plant is owned and operated by the municipality and pays no taxes.

The city of Omaha took over a $5,000,000 plant and must pay bond interest. If the plant were in private hands, approximately $100,000 a year would be paid in taxes. The Omaha municipal rate looks lower on the surface than the Lincoln rate. The rate in the Nebraska metropolis is 85 cents for the first 500 cubic feet used. Then it jumps to $1.20 for consumption of 500 cubic feet up to 110,000 feet and practically all the consumption is within that range. There are few Lincoln consumers who use 500 cubic feet or less during a month. There are not more than two or three local consumers using 100,000 cubic feet of gas a month.

The Omaha consumer who uses the same amount of gas as the average Lincoln consumer, pays nearly 2 cents more on the thousand feet. The 1922 city, county, state and federal taxes of the Lincoln Gas company amount to $51,786.88 and this total is less than a year ago and two years ago. City, county and state taxes are less. The 1922 taxes of the corporation are apportioned as follows:

City	$10,171.96
County	27,971.92
State	550 00
Federal	13,093.00
Total	$51,786.88

There are no new developments in the prospective change of ownership—the passing of the local gas property from the City Service company to the Continental Gas & Electric company. The second and final payment is due in about two weeks. While the Continental has no direct control over the business until the deal is closed, change of ownership will date back to December 1.

POSTAL CLERKS KEEPING UP

Every Package Mailed in Lincoln Monday Was Out of the Office at 10 p. m.

Altho the annual Christmas rush began a little earlier this year, or because it began earlier, the Lincoln postoffice is keeping up with the flood of packages, and Postmaster McClay expects to maintain that record. Eleven thousand packages were mailed Monday, and they averaged an hour in getting from the window to the wagon. The parcels windows closed at about 9 o'clock and every package was out of the office by 10.

The Monday package mail amounted to 1,000 sacks, Mr. McClay said, a little more than came in a year ago on the corresponding date. The postmaster believes people are mailing earlier because they realize there is a Sunday coming just before Christmas. One delivery will be made in Lincoln Sunday morning and one on Christmas day, in the residence section.

SENTENCE OF MAIXNER CUT

THREE SENTENCES COMMUTED TO ONE TO TWENTY YEARS.

Immigration Officers Refuse to Deport Fred Nelson, Omaha Forger, to His Birth Place in Norway.

The decisions of the board of pardons and paroles, officially announced Tuesday, contain the previously published report that the board had denied a commutation of life sentence of Frank Connell of Cheyenne county, bank robber found guilty of the murder of one of two members of a posse who were killed, also the denial of the application for parole filed by Herbert Barge, Wayne county banker serving one to ten years for embezzlement, and the commutation of the sentence of Charles Maixner, the Lincoln banker who was convicted in Saunders county of forgery in connection with the business of banking. Maixner's original sentence was one to twenty years on three counts, running consecutively. The board cut this to a single sentence of from one to twenty years. This makes Maixner eligible to parole as he has served the minimum sentence of one year.

Lou F. Newsum of Newman Grove, convicted of incest was given a commutation of sentence which will liberate him the middle of next summer. His sentence was for twenty years. He told the board his wife and daughter had testified falsely against him and that he had become despondent and pleaded guilty but that he was not guilty. The prosecuting attorney said he had grave doubts about the prisoner's guilt and said his state of mind when he pleaded guilty was one of desperation. His friends said he was "railroaded" into the penitentiary.

Earnest Darwin of Gage county, a young married man serving four years for criminal relations with a girl under fifteen years, was granted a commutation of sentence. He was one of several young men who admitted relations with the girl. One of the youths was tried but the jury disagreed and no others were placed on trial.

Fred Nelson of Douglas, who has a family in Norway, had been paroled by the board on condition that he be deported to his native land. Immigration officers declined to deport him, so his parole was revoked. He is serving from one to twenty years for forgery.

HEAR ALL ABOUT NEBRASKA

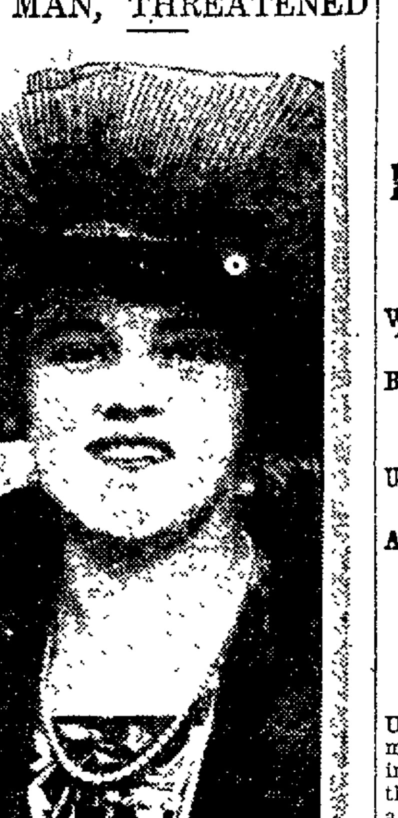

"Forty-and-Eight" Addressed by Dr. G. A. Condra on "Farms and Fish and Waterfalls."

Members of la Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux heard a lot about their home state at their weekly luncheon Tuesday in the chamber of commerce when Dr. G. A. Condra made an address on the resources of the state. Beginning with farm lands, reclamation projects and water power, the speaker by easy stages into a discourse on the fauna of Nebraska, particularly fish and game. And when be called for questions at the close of his talk, the legionnaires all spoke at once, to find out where the best hunting might be found. They learned, among this and other things, that the unusually dense prairies chicken population might or might not continue next season, that some Nebraska lakes are drying up and some are not and that there are more ways than one of catching channel cat. At the close of a particularly enthusiastic discourse the doctor sighed:

"I could talk this stuff all day."

"And never catch a fish!" was the comment from the other end of the table.

HAZEL BRUNEN, DAUGHTER OF CIRCUS MAN, THREATENED

Until two weeks before the opening of the trial at Mount Holly, N J., of Mrs. Doris Brunen and her brother, Harry C. Mohr, for complicity in the murder of her husband, Honest John Brunen, circus and carnival man, his pretty seventeen-year-old daughter, Hazel, was friendly with Mrs Brunen, her step-mother. When Hazel appeared on the witness stand she accused Mrs. Brunen and her step-uncle. There was such a turmoil that court was adjourned. State troopers were assigned to guard the girl Hazel is shown above as she appeared in court.

PAINTS HIM AS CAVE MAN

FARMER IS SAID TO BE A DESCENDANT OF STONEHATCHET.

Instead of a Club He Used a Ford Car, But Was Just as Effective in Bringing the Results Desired.

Grover C. Baker, a Clay county farmer, is pictured in a brief filed in supreme court Tuesday as a descendant of Stonehatchet, the primitive cave man lover, but with this difference that instead of a stone club with which to win his bride he used a Ford car.

Baker is thirty years of age. Lydia Rath, a neighbor's daughter, grew up to become the apple of his eye. As long ago as when she was fifteen, Baker began to woo her. Twice he asked her hand of her father, John Rath, but it was refused because of the girl's age. He besought her to run away with him, but she said she would not wed without the consent of her parents.

On the 5th of November, 1921, as she tells the story, he appeared with his Ford car and his sister, a young woman of strong personality. They took a ride. In the course of it Baker told her that he had secured a license to marry her, and that she would be obliged, under the law, to proceed with the wedding. She says she protested, but he talked wildly of killing himself after disposing of her father, who had finally turned Baker down as a suitor for his daughter's hand.

Acting under duress and coercion, as she charges, they went to Saronville and were married. After a brief wedding trip to Lincoln they returned home. The girl says that she had grown to dislike him and that her conscience began to trouble her because she had married without her parents' consent. When she got into a neighborhood where it was safe, she left him, and suit for annulment of the marriage was begun.

The girl lost her suit and has appealed to the supreme court. There her attorneys paint her a shy, retiring girl, with a lack of education, coerced into a d[illegible]ful marriage. They say Baker w[illegible] ity of fraud in misrepresenting [illegible]ge as nineteen when they were [illegible], whereas she was a month le[illegible]ghteen. They say that a ma[illegible] did, he [illegible]red by fraud is voidable on [illegible]he woul[illegible] the injured party; that th[illegible]ver know[illegible] competent parties is essen[illegible]e law requiring con[illegible]t of parents to marriage of m[illegible]is void. They also say that dure[illegible]cion or imposition on a very you[illegible] girl duped or decoyed into an uns[illegible]able marriage is ground for annulment.

FOUR MEN LOST THEIR LIVES

Captain McPherson and Three Others Swept in Superior When Transferring From Tug.

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., Dec. 19.—Capt. John McPherson and three other men lost their lives when the tug Reliance was wrecked last Wednesday, it was learned here today

The information was contained in a wireless message from Capt. D. A W[illegible]s, commander of the ill-fated tug. The men were swept into the icy waters of Lake Superior when they attempted to lower a life boat and escape from the Reliance, the message said.

PARLEY ON GERMANY IS AIM OF AMERICA

Powers To Be Invited To Confer On The Reparations Question.

WANTS AN EXACT FIGURE SET

Believes Matter Holds Key to European Crisis.

U. S. BANKERS THEN TO ACT

America Ready to Assure Nations That More Lenient Position on International Debts Will Be Forthcoming.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. — The United States, as the outstanding move in its plan to avert a collapse in the old world, is about to invite the European powers to make a final attempt to settle the German reparations problem, it was learned from the most authoritative sources here today.

The "plan" of the United States for intervention in the European situation, which has filled two continents with excitement and anticipation partly because of hte deep mystery surrounding it, can now be revealed. It follows:

1—Believing that reparations is the key to the present European crisis, the United States will participate in a commission or some other form of official inquiry to establish an exact figure for Germany to pay. It would be a figure that would constitute just reparations for the war—an amount that would be up to Germany's capacity to pay, but not beyond.

2—If a settlement of the reparations problem can be effected by an agreement among the European powers on such a figure, the United States can give assurances that American bankers stand ready to advance a loan, with the proper securiher feet and start her towards amortization of the indemnity.

3—Finally the United States government is willing to adopt a more lenient position on the question of collection of the allied war debt to this country; that is, it is ready to consider the obligations of each of the debtor countries on their own merits, granting more leniency in the terms of collection to those countries less able to pay.

Should this far reaching program be worked out, the United States may later suggest other important international moves such as a pact to preserve peace and to limit land armament.

The reason for the mysterious silence that has been maintained by official Washington since it first became evident that the United States intended to intervene in the European situation is because of the delicate stage of the negotiations incident to putting the plan into effect.

This government by informal inquiries has been sounding out the European counties concerned to ascertain whether they would welcome such an offer of cooperation from America before extending a formal invitation.

In conversations and exchanges passing back and forth almost hourly between the United States and the governments of Europe and President Harding meeting today with his cabinet, developments may come at any time that will put the American plans into motion, or perhaps cause them to be dropped and fail.

It is admitted here that one of the greatest questions in success of the plan is the reception that will be given the suggestion by France.

It is hoped France will cooperate, for it is believed that this will be the only attempt by this country to aid in a settlement of the European problem, and the French will be so informed.

Also there may be developments to change the plan somewhat from the outline given in this dispatch. It was said in one authoritative quarter today that some word had been received from Germany that might tend to broaden the American plan.

It was stated emphatically by a high authority of the government that should France occupy the Ruhr or take some other such drastic step, the United States would protest most vigorously.

J. C. CAMPBELL ASKS $2,500

Services Rendered for County in Penitentiary Loup Paving Assessment Fight.

Attorney C. J. Campbell filed a claim Tuesday morning with the county commissioners for $2,500 which he claims due for services be rendered the county during the legal scrap over the assessments for paving on the Penitentiary-Asylum loup. The claim indicated that Mr. Campbell represented the county in the cases of A. J. Sawyer vs Lancaster county, Brown Real Estate Co. vs Lancaster county, and George P. Loos vs Lancaster county.

The claim also requests a conference with the commissioners with regard to a retaining fee for himself and Harry Ankeny, former assistant county attorney, who are representing the county in another case brought by the Brown Real Estate company, and which is closely related to the paving assessment controversy. The claim says Mr. Campbell and Mr. Ankeny are representing the county by request of County Attorney Matson.

The commissioners deferred action until next Tuesday morning.

SOME TOY SHOP NEEDS

Preparations for Christmas Coming Along Nicely Now That Donors Are More Interested.

Wednesday is the last day donations can be received at the community toy shop. The shop especially desires a large number of small pop corn balls which are to be placed in each of the stockings. Two dozen splendid dolls have been purchased with money donated and the committee is anxious that they be nicely dressed.

A number of fine donations were received Monday at the shop, among them two large baskets of mechanical toys from Herpolsheimer's. Many people donated time, among them Walter Schroeder who is an expert with the paint brush. A number of Sunday school classes and their teachers also came to help with the work. Evans laundry has loaned the services of their delivery department to call for any donations people are unable to bring in themselves. The Lincoln Cleaning and Dye works has been cleaning soiled dolls and toys. Superintendent Gus Miller of Hawthorne apartments is sending some of his men to help in the shop Tuesday. All men in the reformatory who have families are among those who will be taken care of by the shop.

The shop's workers are grateful to the firms and citizens of Lincoln who have made donations of toys or given time and money. They will appreciate the interest of those who call at the shop at 231 South Eleventh or call B3889.

CLAIM LONG KNEW FACTS

KRAUSE HEIRS ASK AFFIRMATION OF A JUDGMENT.

Ranchman Claimed Purchaser Held Out on Him His Knowledge of Wealth Underneath Waters of Lake.

A brief has been filed in supreme court in support of the judgment of Judge Westover in Sheridan county forever enjoining Peter Long from trying to collect a $75,000 judgment that he obtained in Douglas county against the estate of John H. Krause. The case was before the supreme court once before, when Long had his judgment affirmed. Then Krause brought suit in their home county to prevent collection on the ground of perjury.

The case is reminiscent of the potash specualtive days. Long owned a ranch in southern Sheridan county upon which there was a big lake. He said that Krause found out that there was potash in the lake, and came around and bought it for $17,000, carefully withholding this information. He said that he inquired about what was being done over at Hoffland, where the first and then the only potash reduction plant was in operation, and was told that they were making smoke mostly.

Long sued for nearly a million, and got judgment for $75,000. Krause was a ranchman who got rich off the potash industry, for a long time getting a royalty of $1,000 a day from the American company for potash taken from the lake. Later he died as the result of an accident in a doctor's office in Alliance.

The brief sets out the claim of the Krauses that the testimony of the witnesses in the trial below proved that Long did know about the possibility of potash being in the lake, that be had investigated and made up his mind that being twelve miles from the railroad his lake would never be available. It is also claimed that Long's own conduct on the witness stand justified the finding of the court that his testimony was unsatisfactory.

On behalf of the Krause estate the court is asked to affirm the judgment of Judge Westover and thus put an end to a long and expensive litigation.

CHURCHES IN FEDERATION

CONGREGATIONALISTS AND PRESBYTERIANS JOIN FORCES.

One Church in Fairmont Where Two Grew Before Expected to Function More Economically and Effectively.

An experiment in church federation on which the eyes of at least two large church groups have been fixed for half a year, will begin January 1 when the Congregational and Presbyterian churches of Fairmont become one church. The two congregations endorsed the proposal almost unanimously Sunday morning, and Dr. David D. Honsaker of the Presbyterian church was in Lincoln Tuesday to have the necessary papers put into shape. These are to be signed before January 1 by the officers of the two churches, after which the congregation of the Federated Community church of Fairmont will elect a new set of officers for the ensuing year.

Both denominations have been established in Fairmont for half a century and more, and the merger was not undertaken without long and careful consideration. Authority was obtained at the last sessions of the Nebraska City synod and when the matter was put to a vote Sunday, but three Congregationalists and two Presbyterians dissented. It is generally felt that the town can support one strong, active church better than two not so large, and with less waste motion and money. Since the consolidation was broached, many persons have thought seriously of becoming church members, and thirteen of those who voted for the merger were brand new Presbyterians.

Both Dr. Honsaker and Rev. William B. Kline of the Congregational church will remain in Fairmont for the time being, Doctor Honsaker probably until October 1, and one of them may be called to the united pastorate, or the congregations may bring in a minister from outside. Until a building adequate to the needs of the federated church is available, the place of meeting will be in the hands of the new church board. Meanwhile each denomination will support its own pastor and meet in its own building.

The articles of consolidation provide that while the various governing and business boards of the church shall be made up of equal numbers from both denominations, there shall be two missionary treasurers, who shall administer special gifts. Moneys earned or given by the various church societies shall be divided equally among the two denominations, and the two churches will keep their organization and their denominational entity intact. The Sunday school and auxiliary societies are to be merged.

The moderator of the Nebraska City synod, the Presbyterian synodical superintendent and the state superintendent of the Congregational church are to be an advisory board for the church council, made up of officers from both groups, and the board of fellowship and worship will be an advisory group for the pastor. The trustees are to fix the pastor's salary and submit the annual budget, reporting quarterly to the congregation, and the church council will report annually.

BEWARE OF FIRES AT CELEBRATIONS

Fire Chief Hansen Reminds the Public of Dangers in Yuletide Observance—Issues Bulletin of Directions.

The city fire department has issued a note of warning to the people of this city to eliminate any fire hazards in celebrating Christmas. Chief Louis Hansen states, "Christmas in the home can be turned from a time of rejoicing into one of sorrow." He lays much emphasis on the danger of using candles for lighting Christmas trees.

The chief's bulletin follows:

"About this time of year, the children—and a good many grown-ups, too—are patiently counting the days until Christmas. Above all other days, Christmas should be an occasion of universal cheer. It should be, and yet—in many households it is likely to become a tragedy because of death or injury from fire. I am speaking because it is my plain duty to do so. My own experience is backed up by some statistics received from the national board of fire underwriters, from which I learn that an average of one in every ten Christmas fires last year resulted in a fatality. Moderate carefulness will not detract one bit from the fullest enjoyment of the day.

"The Christmas tree is an old and beautiful symbol and one that should be preserved. But it becomes none the less symbolic when it is made safe; and it cannot even approach to safety so long as it is decked with lighted candles. If the tree must be illuminated, colored electric lights are more ornamental and usually far safer. Of course, a bright light focused on the tree in a darkened room is a safe method and gives, perhaps, the most pleasing effect.

"It is not only on the tree, however, that candles are dangerous; placing them in windows, where there are inflammable curtains and decorations, is extremely dangerous. All open flame lights are dangerous. I am laying emphasis on the candle, because, of late, it seems to have come back into fashion—and into my fire records.

"Of the fact that fire insurance protection may be voided by the introduction of hazards not contemplated under the policy, I have made no mention. Such, however, is the case and this possibility supplies a further reason for carefulness.

"Here are a few additional precautions which I urge the public to observe in homes, in stores and elsewhere:

"Make sure that Christmas trees are securely set up, so that they will not topple over, and keep them away from heating and lighting fixtures. Use metal tinsel, flake asbestos and powdered mica for snow effects, instead of paper clippings and cotton. Smokers should be extremely careful with matches and smoking material while near trees and decorations. Evergreens should be removed immediately after Christmas before they have completely dried out.

"Avoid toys requiring alcohol, gasoline or kerosene for their operation and also flimsy motion picture machines using inflammable films. Low priced electrical playthings, too, should be tabooed, since they often are defectively wired and frequently have insecure, dangerous connections, they have caused serious burns and fires.

"If Santa Claus is to be present at the celebration, persuade him to avoid the use of long cotton whiskers. His costume should be partially fire-proofed by spraying upon it a solution of water-glass, obtainable at any drug store.

"If anyone's clothing catches fire, he should be promptly rolled in a rug or woolen cloth in order to smother the flames. Keep the flames away from the face.

"Merchants should free their places of business from rubbish and paper accumulations, and should insist that employes keep all exits clear. It is difficult to keep stock rooms tidy during the busy holiday season, I realize, but it is well worth the extra effort.

"Finally, let every individual do his utmost not to spoil the merriment of the day. No one likes to hear the chimes of Christmas converted into the jangle of the fire alarm."

LOST MAIL AIRPLANE IS FOUND IN UTAH

Pilot Boomstra Is Safe, Postal Department Believes, Following Finding of Suit on the Wings.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The mail plane flown by Pilot Boomstra of the United States mail service, which was lost in a blizzard last Friday, was located on Porcupine ridge late yesterday by Pilot Bishop, who was detailed to the search, the postoffice department was notified today.

Flying over the ridge, which is about twenty miles from Salt Lake City and ten miles off the regular mail route, Bishop sighted the plane and found the flying suit of its pilot spread out on the wings. This leads the department to believe the pilot is safe. A searching party left Salt Lake this morning and is battling with twenty feet of snow in an attempt to reach a deserted cabin two miles from the location of the plane, where they believe the aviator is awaiting aid.

RUSSIA STILL HUNGRY.

LONDON.—(By Mail.)—Cod liver oil by the ton is part of the supplies that have been distributed thruout Russia to hospitals and institutions, according to J. Bentley Mulford, representative in Russia, who has returned to the United States. Despite an enormous improvement in Moscow, Mulford says, "the results of the famine are still apparent everywhere. In the crowded orphan homes where we are still feeding American food, in the hospitals where patients are being treated for intestinal trouble caused by eating grass and clay, in the refugees—the awful days of famine are still bitterly apparent."

AGREE ON PENSION BILL.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Senate and house conferees reached an agreement on the Bursum-Fuller pension bill today. It is planned to press for an early ratifying vote in both houses as a Christmas remembrance to soldiers and widows of the Mexican, civil and Indian wars, and also for the maimed soldiers of all wars—including the world war.

DRY HOLIDAY IS THE GOAL

NATION-WIDE CAMPAIGN BY FEDERAL PROHIBITION BUREAU.

Harding and State Governors May Appeal to the People to Help in Carrying Out Dry Law.

WASHINGTON. Dec. 19.—A nation-wide campaign to make this Christmas and new years the "dryest" in history has been started by the federal prohibition bureau.

As Christmas draws near, every effort is being made by prohibition forces thruout the country to dry up the flood of holiday liquors at their sources.

As part of the campaign, President Harding and state governors may appeal to the people to assist in enforcing the dry law. At the conference of the president and governors here yesterday, a preponderance of opinion favored such a move, according to an official statement. Advance reports to the prohibition bureau indicated an unprecedented amount of bootleg liquor, intended for Christmas cheer, already has been seized by dry forces.

RHEUMATISM IN THE JAIL

WILLIAM JURGENSEN SAYS THAT WATER STOOD IN BASEMENT.

County Commissioners Rejected the Claim of Rheumatic Man for Pains Which Hurt Him in the Knees.

A claim for $5,000 was filed with the county commissioners at the weekly meeting Tuesday morning by William Jurgensen, who claims that he became afflicted with rheumatism while confined in the county jail in March and April, 1922. The claimant said the rheumatism was taken on account of the jail being flooded with water five or six days during his captivity. The pain attacked him in the knees. After considering the claim, County Commissioners Bennett and Hensley decided to reject it. Commissioner Cameron was in Missouri on a business trip.

Inspection of the jail records show that only one William Jurgensen was confined in that institution during March or April. The one mentioned was imprisoned for alleged non-support.

Questioning of Jailer Henry Craig brought forth the statement that at no time in the history of his jailorship has the basement of Sheriff Miller's hostelry been "flooded" with water. Once a drain pipe became clogged, but within a few hours a cable was taken to the jail and the clog pushed out.

BLACKMAIL WORRIED REID

Movie Star Was Threatened by Exposure Just as He Was Winning Fight Against Dope.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9.—Blackmailers aided in precipitating the final breakdown of Wallace Reid, movie star, it was asserted today by his friends.

When he was fighting to break himself of the drug habit, certain men in Hollywood and Los Angeles attempted to obtain money from him to suppress the printing of an expose, it was charged.

This expose was to have been printed without names but would have instantly labeled Reid as the man referred to, according to Mrs. Alice Davenport, the star's mother-in-law. Reid steadfastly refused to play into the hands of the blackmailers but their scheme worried him greatly, Mrs. Davenport said. Coming just at the time when he was fighting to break himself of the habit, these threats were largely responsible for his breakdown, she believes.

MORTGAGE MEN IN MEETING

Discuss Plans for Reorganization of the State Association at a Gathering Tuesday.

Some thirty-five men interested in the farm mortgage business met at the Lincoln hotel Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of reorganizing the state association, which winked out three years ago. Men from various parts of the state were in attendance. The only plans in mind, according to several of those present, have to do with putting the organization back onto its feet and making it a going concern. There is a national association of farm mortgage bankers, and it is possible that in time the state association will become affiliated with it. Various questions of interest to this branch of finance come up from time to time, and it is believed to be desirable to have some sort of an organization that may speak with authority or lead in any matter of direct interest.

MANUFACTURERS TO DISCUSS WATERWAYS

Internal Improvements and Commerce Among Topics for Annual Meeting at Omaha on January 11.

Preparations are under way to make the tenth anual meeting of the Nebraska Manufacturers' association the most interesting and valuable in the history of the organization, according to Otto Zumwinkel, commissioner, who has just returned from a directors' meeting in Omaha. The annual meeting takes place January 11 in Omaha.

But one address is on the program of the banquet, that of James A. Emery, counsel for the national association, who spoke before the Nebraska manufacturers four years ago. Mr. Emery is an authority on industrial relations and problems and well known in this state.

Among the topics for discussion during the day are the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, on which Victor Smith is to give some first hand information, and the Central Nebraska Supplemental Water association, whose president, C. W. McConaughy of Holdrege, will speak. Other subjects that may find a place on the program include industrial insurance, the importance of safety appliances in manufacturing plants, employment and the labor supply, and the immigration problem. Efforts are being made to bring Charles P. Craig, vice president and executive director of the St. Lawrence project, to Omaha for this meeting. Mr. Craig has been heard in Lincoln on this subject.

Comforting Thought.

In the present coal situation it is pleasant to recall Sir Oliver Lodge's prediction that in the more or less near future we will get our heat from atoms, and that a teaspoonful of atoms will keep us warm the entire winter. Meanwhile we shall keep telephoning to our coal dealer.—Boston Transcript.

IRISH REBELS PUT TO DEATH

SEVEN MORE INSURGENTS EXECUTED BY FREE STATE.

Demonstrations by Friends Who Threw Bombs Heard by Condemned Men in Last Hours in Cells.

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—Seven more insurgents were executed by free state authorities today.

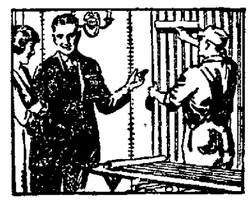

Rebel leaders, aware that the death sentences were to be carried out at daybreak, ordered demonstration in the vicinity of the jails where the prisoners were confined.

The doomed men, in their last hours, heard the distant explosions of bombs being hurled by their friends who dashed about the streets in fast motor cars.

The official announcement stated that the seven rebels were recently captured at Kildare. They were executed at Portobello barracks, the statement said.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

DEATH LEAP FROM HOSPITAL WINDOW

Charles Hamilton, a Patient, Jumped From Third Story and Was Picked Up Breathing His Last.

Charles E. Hamilton, patient at the Lincoln sanitarium, leaped to his death from the third story of that building at 3:45 p. m. Monday. Attendants who saw him falling rushed out to the walk to pick him up and found him breathing his last.

Mr. Hamilton was in a serious condition following an operation for acute peritonitis last Friday. He was not delirious and had shown no signs of doing anything violent. His act came as a great surprise and shock to his attendants, who had no warning that he might attempt to leave his bed. It was understood the attendant had just left the room a moment before.

Mr. Hamilton was thirty-two years of age. His home was at 3434 T street. He leaves a wife and nine-year-old daughter, Jeannette. A brother, J. A. Hamilton, lives at 2626 Dudley street. Mr. Hamilton was a switchman and had been employed by the Burlington railroad.

Mr. Hamilton jumped from a window on the north side of the hospital, falling on the cement walk about twenty-two feet below. His skull was fractured and he sustained other bruises. The hospital is located at Fourteenth and M streets.

J. A. Hamilton, a brother of Charles E. Hamilton, said that he visited his brother at 3 p. m. and that he showed signs of delirium at that time. He believed that his brother was delirious when he jumped from the window.

It was understood that Mrs. Hamilton, who had been with him all day, had stepped out in the hall and that there was no nurse in the room at the time. This is the story Mrs. Hamilton told after the tragedy. Hospital attaches were quoted as saying that a nurse was in the room at the time.

It was not stated whether relatives would ask for an inquest.

BOYS ADMIT TAKING CARS

Two Fremont Youths Make a Confession After Being Caught With an Auto.

FREMONT, Neb., Dec. 18.—Police believe they have solved a series of baffling auto thefts in Fremont in which a number of automobiles have been stolen and later abandonded. Alleged confessions by Crawford Howard and Patrick Nestle, both aged about fifteen, implicating a number of other boys' and girls' who accepted rides in the stolen machines, were made public today.

Saturday night, a coupe owned by Dr. J. S. Devries, was reported to the police as missing. A local filling station attendant reported at the same time that two boys had driven up in a coupe to fill the tank and while waiting had bent the license number beyond recognition. Sheriff Condit and a number of deputies luckily picked the road to Omaha and overtook the coupe and its two occupants at Waterloo. Two revolvers were found in the car, one identified as stolen from a Fremont residence recently.

At the police station the boys' named Clarence Cady and Merle Livingston, 'boys' of their own age, as participants in like robberies and theft of revolvers. Seven school girls' who had enjoyed wild joy rides on their rambles in stolen cars were also questioned by the police. They told various stories of their escapades with the boys in the stolen automobiles.

Young Howard, however, insists that this was his first offense. The craving for excitement is the only reason the boys' can give for their acts.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

The Coterie dancing club entertained at one of the most attractive parties of the holiday season at the Rosewilde Monday evening. About sixty-five couples were present including a number of guests. In the center of the ball room stood a large Christmas tree, gay with many colored electric lights, from which gifts were distributed during the evening. Favors of Santa Claus paper hats, candy, dolls, whistles and confetti were given. One feature of the entertainment was a dance by Evelyn Brown and Ella Walbridge, accompanied on the piano by Dorothy Williams. Punch was served thruout the evening and during the intermission, Christmas boxes containing the lunch and favors for the men were distributed. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Poffenbarger, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Magee, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dye, Mr. and Mrs. Jul Petermichael of Valparaiso, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hallet, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. The Hokomok dancing club entertained at an attractive Christmas dinner dance at the Lincoln hotel Monday evening. Covers were laid for fifty-five couples at small tables arranged around the ball room. A miniature Christmas tree decorated with colored lights formed the centerpiece for each table. Tall red tapers in poinsettia candle holders and poinsettia place cards were also used to carry out the suggestion of the Christmas season. In the center of the room stood a large Christmas tree, brilliantly lighted with many colored electric lights. Festoons of red and green, hung with Christmas bells extended from the side walls to the center chandeliers which were shaded in red and green. Smaller Christmas trees placed across the platform screened the orchestra. There were five favor dances during the evening. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Burkett, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Joseph, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Clements, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. The Merimyx dancing club entertained about twenty-five couples at a Christmas party at the Lincoln hotel Monday evening. A large Christmas tree, brilliantly lighted with many colored electric lights stood in the center of the ball room. Streamers of red and green extended from the chandeliers in the center of the room to the side walls and Christmas bells and holly wreaths were suggestive of the holiday season. Punch and wafers were served during the evening and coffee and sandwiches during intermission. There were several favor dances and the gifts were distributed from the tree. The committee in charge of the arrangements included A. O. Gronquist, Harry M. Wentz, W. C. Steffensmeyer, W. F. Holmes, J. W. Edwards, and John Mengshol.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cramb were host and hostess Monday evening at a prettily appointed 7 o'clock dinner at the Lincolnshire complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Leon Crandall and Mrs. Crandall's mother, Mrs. H. B. Gellatly who are leaving Wednesday to make their home in California. Covers were laid for eighteen guests at one long table. A small lighted Christmas tree formed the centerpiece and was surrounded by red candles in crystal holders. The place cards and nut cups were suggestive of the Christmas season. Following the dinner the guests went to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Cramb and the evening was spent informally.

Walter B. Montgomery, who raises big red apples on his farm near Troy, Kas., as a business, and writes philosophical and historical stories for the newspapers of the mid-west country as a recreation, is visiting friends in Lincoln. It has been said of Mr. Montgomery that when government land lotteries were in the fashion he attended as many, if not, more, than any man in the country, and kept the newspapers posted on who had been the lucky ones in the drawings.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis (Buddy) Hyers are here for the holidays. They will visit Mr. and Mrs. Gus A. Hyers and Fritz Harris and family. Mrs. Hyers, formerly Miss Ruth Webb, is a sister of Mrs. Harris. "Buddy" holds a responsible position with the Pacific Fruit company with headquarters at Ogden, Utah.

T. M. Osterman of Merrick county, one of the democratic members of the legislature, arrived in Lincoln Monday. He has just returned from Florida.

A meeting and dinner of the executives of the Nebraska Radio corporation was held Monday evening at the Grand hotel for a business discussion.

SUICIDE INVESTIGATION MADE

Eleven Bullets Which Entered James Sasek's Body Were Within Five Inches of Heart.

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 18.—Investigation of the suicide of James Sasek, head miller at the Dewitt mills, which occurred Sunday afternoon, disclosed that eleven bullets fired into his body had centered within a radius of about five inches of his heart.

According to the story of Joe Divisek, who accompanied Sasek on his hunting trip, after giving Divisek a part of a bottle of whisky which he carried, Sasek told his companion to go down the river bank and scare up some rabbits, stating that he would go along and hunt in the brush and weeds. Divisek states that he had gone hardly two hundred feet when he heard shots, and, on returning, found Sasek on one knee, the butt of the rifle on the ground, and the muzzle pressing against his breast.

Sasek was reared in Dewitt. He had been in poor health for some years and only a few weeks ago he had undergone treatment in a Beatrice hospital. He was unmarried and lived alone in Dewitt. A brother and sister reside at Crete.

PIONEER PREACHER DIES AT FREMONT

Rev. Jacob Adriance Served the Methodist Church as a Nebraska Circuit Rider in the 50s.

FREMONT, Neb., Dec. 18.—Rev. Jacob Adriance, well known to Nebraska Methodists, died at his home at Fremont Monday. He was eighty-seven years old. He had been a resident of Nebraska for sixty years and most of that time had been spent in the service of the church. He was one of the pioneer preachers, a colaborer of Rev. T. B. Lemon, Rev Isaac Chivington, Rev J. B. Maxfield, Rev. J. J. Roberts and other Methodist church history makers of the state. He came to Nebraska in 1857, settling at Tekamah and serving the DeSoto mission. The following year he moved to Fremont and took charge of the Platte valley circuit of the Methodist church. There were then twelve appointments on the circuit. After one year of service he made the trip overland to Colorado, where he was made chaplain of the lower house of the legislature. In 1860 he removed to Golden City, Colo., and in 1861 was put in charge of the church at Central City, Colo. He returned to New York for an eighteen months' visit and returning to Nebraska was made pastor of the church at Decatur. He afterwards served at Fremont, Ft Calhoun, Fontenelle, North Bend, Wahoo, and later, charges in Sarpy and Douglas counties. In 1862 Rev. Mr. Adriance secured a farm in Dodge county on a land warrant issued to his father and signed by Abraham Lincoln. After a long service for the church his health and hearing failed him and he went to his farm in Dodge county. In 1905 he moved to Fremont. He was married in April, 1860, to Fanne A. Rogers, and four children were born to the union, two of them dying in their younger years. He was born in Cayuga county, New York, October 22, 1835.

He passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Burril. He is survived by two daughters, a brother, eight grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Word was received today of the birth of a granddaughter of Rev. Mr. Adriance in Long Beach, born on the day her grandfather passed away. Mrs Adriance died fourteen years ago. Funeral services are to be held in Fremont Thursday afternoon.

FORGER RECEIVES SENTENCE

Pleads Guilty to Charge Monday—His Bride Has Gone to Live With Her Mother.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Dec. 18.—Ralph E. Roach arrested some time ago on the charge of forgery, pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Paine in district court Monday and was sentenced to from one to twenty years in the state reformatory. Mr. Roach, a salesman for the Grand Island Chemical company, was only recently married. His bride of a few months has gone to live with her mother in Iowa.

The municipal tree planting campaign is ended insofar as it pertains to the 1922 fall and winter season. Park Superintendent Edinborough stated Monday that the fall planting has placed 1,052 trees of the accepted type into spaces between the sidewalk and the street line. The spring planting will be less extensive but there will be a total of approximately 2,000 trees when the spring run-over is added to the fall showing. One year ago 1,700 trees were planted in line with the new municipal program. During the first year but 800 trees were planted. The total number has

OVER MILLION IS INVOLVED

THREE RAILROADS WOULD SLICE STATE TAXES ROUNDLY.

Say Roads Undervalued Along With Farmers of Whom Transportation Companies Complain.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 18.—Over a million dollars of state taxes are involved in the injunction suit presented in part in federal court here today before Federal Judges Lewis, Munger the Woodrough. The entire morning was consumed by the lawyers in telling the court what it was all about and the remainder of the day in submitting evidence in the form of affidavits.

The Burlington is assessed for nearly two million in taxes on an assessed valuation of $137,000,000, and is willing to pay 65 per cent of the amount. The Northwestern is assessed for three-fifths of a million taxes and is willing to pay 60 per cent. The Minneapolis & Omaha is down to pay $200,000, and wants to pay but 40 per cent.

All three of the roads claim they are overvalued for taxation purposes and that the state, at the same time, is assessing farm lands at from 40 to 68 per cent of their actual sale value.

The state claims that the roads are undervalued for taxation purposes, and that while it is true that farm lands are assessed at from 68 to 75 per cent of their value the roads are no more harshly dealt with in the matter of assessments.

The state claims that the railroads have no business in federal court, and that the court should not entertain their application for a reduction of taxes because they have an adequate remedy at law, an appeal from the state board of taxation to the state supreme court.

The railroad attorneys had some difficulty in answering questions of the judges as to reports they made to the state railway commission in 1909-12. At that time the commission was trying to find a valuation of the roads for rate-making purposes. It asked the railroads to give an estimate of how much it would cost them to reproduce their properties new at that time. Now comes the tax commissioner and takes these reports, adds to the values there given the additions and betterments made since then, and finds values for the Burlington of $234,000,000, for the Northwestern of $63,000,000 and for the Omaha road of $14,800,000, as compared with state taxation board figures of $137,000,000 for the Burlington, $38,000,000 for the Northwestern and $12,000,000 for the Omaha.

The Northwestern attorney said the figures supplied the railway commission at that time were merely answers to questions and not a claim of value, and that they were not intended to fix a present value. He said the railway commission never had fixed a valuation. The Burlington attorney, on the other hand, said that the commission had fixed the value of its road at that time, and if that basis were taken the state's own valuation is now less than $137,000,000.

C. F. Balch, assistant auditor of the Northwestern, testified to a valuation of $32,000,000 on that road's Nebraska property, and Auditor Jenen of the Omaha road to a valuation of $6,689,000. These figures represented the average of five different methods used to ascertain value.

T. A. Polleys, tax commissioner, submitted a valuation of several thousand real estate transfers, showing that land that sold in 1921 for $85 an acre was assessed at an average of but $45.74. Census figures submitted showed that in 1920 land valued at an average of $87.91 an acre was assessed at but an average of $39.19. The records of mortgage companies were produced to show that the lands covered by them were assessed at but 55 per cent of what their owners appraised them at.

Testimony produced on behalf of the Burlington covered appraisements of farm lands by local real estate men, compilations of mortgage records and actual sales, showing the lands covered by the studies were assessed at from 42.5 to 68 per cent of actual value.

Abstractors from Lincoln and Omaha testified that actual sales of city property in which the assessed value was but 60 per cent of the price obtained. The federal crop reporter's figures showing that land had advanced 384 per cent from 1900 to 1920 was introduced.

O. E. Bernecker, secretary of the board in 1916, was shown to have told the county assessors that they should assess farm lands at 75 per cent of sales values, "and we will have an assessment to be proud of."

The Burlington also submitted testimony of its own officials to show the actual value of its Nebraska property to be $108,000,000, and that the board had included property located outside the state and not used in operation. R. D. Pollard pointed out in an affidavit that the bank deposits in 1922 were $432,000,000, whereas the total intangible reported for 1922 was but $140,000,000.

Another document sought to prove that the state board formally adopted in 1921 a basis of 68 per cent of farm values for taxation purposes, and another showing the adoption by the county assessors' association of a 15 per cent cut. Mr. Root said the tax commissioner sent out a copy of this in 1921 and urged assessors to follow that basis. In 1922 another letter was sent out by the tax commissioner which Mr. Root interpreted to mean was a suggestion that the farmers be given some relief from excessive legislative appropriations.

When Mr. Lamaster started to submit his case for the state, the Burlington objected to his trying to prove its property to be worth more than the board had fixed it at, as impeaching its own finding, but the court let him go ahead.

An affidavit of U. G. Powell, which supplemented a showing taken from the annual report of the state railway commission, fixed the present value of the Burlington at $234,000,000, that of the Northwestern at $63,000,000 and of the Omaha road at $14,800,000. He did not swear that these are the actual values, but that they were built up out of reports made from time to time to the commission. Mr. Root said the figures are "wild."

The state also submitted affidavits from loaning companies, which were to the effect that they find so few actual cash sales being made that they have gone back to 1916 values as a basis for making loans. The state introduced a certificate from the state railway commission to the effect that it had never fixed a valuation on the Burlington property.

Are Your Feet Pinched or Cramped?
When you pinch or cramp your feet in ordinary shoes, you suffer more than local injury. You impair your circulation through compressed veins; you reduce your vigor and spirits; and you prepare the way for fallen arches, backache, nervousness, headache and other serious ailments physicians ascribe to foot troubles.
No Concealed Metal.
To avoid these, wear the Cantilever Shoe which is made with an arch flexible like your own arch. Unlike ordinary shoes, no rigid strip of steel secreted between soles restricts every step. The Cantilever arch bends freely, strengthens your arch muscles with exercise, and corrects and prevents arch weakness.

When you lace Cantilevers, the flexible shank draws up to supply just the support each one of your arches needs. Cantilevers are designed with thoroughgoing and farsighted thought for foot comfort and foot efficiency, with low heels, a natural sole line, and the rounded toes so much in fashion today.
Here is Real Comfort.
For supreme comfort, inspect your feet in Cantilevers. They are good-looking shoes excellently made, reasonably priced, made in many styles with but one intention—the intention of fitting women to the utmost comfort.

S. O. S. Call For the Union Colleges in the Orient.

300 Ford Building,
Boston, Mass., December 18, 1922.

My Dear Friend:

As you may know, the Trustees of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Fund, after careful investigation, made a conditional gift of one million dollars to the Women's Union Christian Colleges of the Orient. There are seven colleges, two of them medical schools. They are located in Peking and Nanking, China; Toyko, Japan; and Madras, Vellore and Lucknow, India. They are the hope for Christian leadership for the women of the Far East, since 90 per cent of the students are Christian and are products of mission schools of all denominations. They are Christian colleges though not sectarian. The Mission Boards are responsible for their maintenance but are unable to provide land and buildings. This promise of a million depends on our securing two millions before January first. It has been very difficult to complete this amount owing to various relief funds and many local calls. It is easier to respond to pitiful appeals for temporary relief with a "cup of cold water" than to settle to the task of digging wells which will provide streams of living water for the four hundred millions of women in India, China and Japan. Until we have given them an adequate supply of trained teachers, physicians, church leaders, translators, reformers and enlightened mothers, there is no possibility of even touching their vast populations.

The girls are flocking to the colleges from all our missions. One hundred and fifty applicants were turned away from the medical school in Vellore, India, last year, and yet there is only one doctor to a million women in India, and little girls are still married at ten and eleven and are often mothers at twelve and thirteen, with no medical help, and no Red Cross. The first class of doctors graduated in April with a fine record, outranking the men who came from six medical colleges. We are sending out Christian teachers who will reduce illiteracy. Only one woman in one thousand in China can read. A church cannot be founded on an illiterate, superstitious womanhood.

All the world looks to America at this Christmas season. America is the one happy, prosperous nation. It will be tragic if she fails the world in its crisis. We have not found a safe league of nations, politically, but here is a possibility of sending a concrete and beautiful expression of peace and good will to a needy, hopeless world.

A Japanese official, when he heard of the plan to build a Woman's Christian College in Tokyo, expressed deep appreciation, and added, "You know we have a Japanese proverb—'Where the women are friends the men do not fight.'" We have learned that friendships are better than battleships and cost less.

The amount needed is not yet in hand. The gifts, though many, have been small. We lack at present $350,000. Unless you and others can help promptly with generous checks we shall lose a part of the million and must send a sorrowful message to those who are waiting over there so anxiously to know the fate of the colleges. Have you given before? Give again, as much as you can, to make Christmas where Christ cannot come except as His children open the door. Checks may be paid through January, though solicitation will close January first. As you light your Christmas candles in your home, light these too, that they may shine around the world.

Yours very sincerely,

LUCY W. PEABODY.

Part of Lincoln's quota is included in this shortage. Let us not be guilty of this. Send your checks at once to the local treasurers, MISS HARRIET BARDWELL, 1971 Euclid Ave.; or MR. PHIL EASTERDAY, First National Bank.

DEMAND FOR OFFICE AUDIT

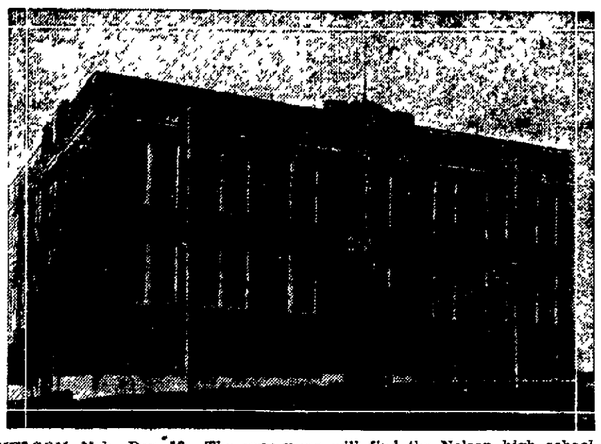

ATTORNEY AT NORTH PLATTE MAKES A COMPLAINT.

Says Too Much Money Has Been Spent in Building New Court House and Wants an Investigation.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Dec. 19.—W C Shuman, a well known attorney of this city has written a letter to the local papers demanding an auditing of every county office and demanding as a taxpayer that not another dollar be paid out on the court house construction accounts until such audit is made. He says Lincoln county has a court house scandal, that enough money was voted and raised to build a fine new court house at North Platte, but that it is about all spent and that all that has been secured are the walls, floors, roof and heating plant and that he has been told that it will take $100,000 to finish the building. He says that contract letting was not legal and that the requirements of law in such matters have not been met

A. S Allen, county clerk, has turned over the keys to his office since his recent arrest and the commissioners have appointed Theo. Lowe, county clerk-elect, to fill the unexpired term.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING AT NELSON, NEB.

NELSON, Neb., Dec. 18.—The new year will find the Nelson high school housed in what is purported to be the finest and most up-to-the-minute building in this section of the west. The building is constructed of fire-proof material, there being less than 10 per cent wood used in all the work, and that only in some of the interior finish. A large auditorium and a splendid gymnasium are among the desirable features

MOVE AN OIL BORING RIG

Work Has Been Stopped on a Hole Being Sunk Not Far From Lakeside.

LAKESIDE, Neb., Dec. 19.—The oil rig at this place is now being dismantled and the casing taken from the well. This after an effort of more than a year to locate oil in an unknown territory, but which bore minor but very important markings as an oil field Two wells were sunk during this time, one to the depth of nearly 3,000 feet and the other one, 600 feet from the first, was drilled half the distance of the orginal In the first well gas was found at a depth of 2,200 feet. It was the plan to drill to this depth in the new well and fully develop the gas findings. The removal of the rig before this depth has been reached has considerably mystified all concerned in this section of the state, for much hope was entertained in this development. The management has given out the statement that the rig will be taken to Wyoming to operate this winter in well known oil districts and will be returned here during the coming summer for further development. While much skepticism is felt as to the latter part of the statement, the fact that this oil company has never been a stock selling outfit and is managed by prominent men here, Alliance, Omaha and Council Bluffs, hope has not entirely vanished as to the possibilty of western Nebraska yet being an important oil field

NEVILLE FILES A SUIT

Arthur Mullen, Acting for Receiver for Skinners, Wants Stockholders to Pay Notes.

OMAHA, Dec. 18.—Arthur Mullen, attorney for Keith Neville, receiver for the Skinner Packing company, today filed suit involving $900,000 in federal court against more than 5,000 stockholders in the Skinner company to compel them to pay the balance of their notes due to the company on stock purchases.

The present action is to recover the amount due on the notes and to enforce the lien the company holds on the stock held by it as securit . In virtually every instance the stock purchased by these defendants is held as collateral security for the payment of these notes.

According to Arthur Mullen, the present indebtedness of the Skinner company is about $575,000. If these notes can be collected, the debts will be paid and the company will start again on a new basis.

The largest item against any individual was $27,000 from an outstate bank.

United States Attorney Kinsler said that an individual suit would probably have to be filed against each stockholder.

MOTHER COLLINS LAID TO REST

Identified With Early History of This State.

KEARNEY, Neb., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Louisa E. "Mother" Collins, was laid to rest Sunday, public funeral services being held at the Methodist Episcopal church, of which she was the last living charter member. Saturday the body laid in state at her residence and hundreds paid a last tribute to the memory of one of the first white women of one her permanent home within Nebraska's borders.

Mrs. Collins was in her ninety-second year. She was apparently in excellent health until about two weeks ago, when she fell down a flight of stairs, suffering injuries and a shock which were responsible for her death.

While her husband, Rev. Asbury Collins, she came to Fort Kearney in 1871 and the family first located at what was known as Kearney Junction. Rev. Collins did the work of a pioneer minister in Kearney and over central and western Nebraska. In 1875 the oldest son, Milton M. was shot and killed by a cowboy, the boss of a cattle herding outfit returning to Texas from South Dakota where they had disposed of their cattle to Indians. This killing took place on what is now Kearney's main street. In 1882 another son, David was shot and killed while hunting. Rev. Collins died in 1890.

Mrs. Collins was one of the most active organizers of the W. C. T. U. in Nebraska and she was also a charter member of the Methodist church established here. Prior to organizing the church the Collins home was a place of worship of the community. One year ago in September Kearney celebrated the ninetieth birthday of Mother Collins and also the fiftieth anniversary of founding of the Methodist church locally.

Mother Collins was a woman of large mentality and of great force of character. She made a trip to Omaha last September to attend the annual conference of the Methodist church and to see "her boys" as she called so many of the preachers who had, in the earlier day, looked to her and her husband for encouragement and help in their initial years of the ministry.

SANTA TO VISIT MILLERS

Attempt of Mother to Commit Suicide Causes Deluge of Toys for Children.

OMAHA, Dec. 19.—Santa Claus is coming to the Miller home after all.

Following attempt at suicide Monday by Mrs. Minnie Miller because she could not buy toys for her five small children, kind hearted neighbors deluged the little cottage with toys, food and clothing

Mrs. Miller today expressed a desire to get well.

"It was very foolish for me to attempt suicide," she said. "I was sick and couldn't work. Now I'm hoping that the children's father will learn how poor we are and come back to us."

Waterloo, Ia., had 18 degrees below zero temperature.

DENTIST FINDS HIS FAMILY

Dr. R. E. Anderson of Allen Learns of Mother and Brothers and Sisters in Iowa.

ALLEN, Neb., Dec. 19—Dr. R. E. Anderson, dentist of this place, has long believed he was alone in the world, except for his adopted parents and his present family; but has recently learned that his mother and several brothers and sisters live in and near Davenport, Ia They are planning a family reunion at Davenport Christmas.

Dr. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sachau, emigrated from Germany and settled at Clinton, Ia., where on December 15, 1893 a son was born to them. Following the birth of the child, Mrs. Sachau was seriously ill with typhoid fever and for weeks it was thought she could not recover. The babe was cared for, for a time, by neighbors, but a few weeks later was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. C. E Anderson who shortly removed from Clinton to Moville, Ia., where the child grew to manhood as R E. Anderson. It was believed by the Andersons that Mrs. Sachau died.

A few weeks ago a relative of Dr. Anderson's wife visited at Clinton. Her inquiries disclosed that the father, John Sachau, died some years ago, but that the mother, since married, is now living in Davenport. Sisters of Dr. Anderson are Mrs. Elizabeth Harrington, Blue Island, Ill.; Mrs. Gertrude Fike, Dalton, Ill.; Mrs Erna Gilroy, Rockford, Ill., and Miss Nel Sachau, Milwaukee, Wis. The brothers are John Sachau, Charlotte, Ia., Walter, with the United States marines in China, and Henry, with the United States army in New York.

BAD RUN OF LUCK HOLDS

Defeated Candidate Unable to Accept Offer of Acquaintance Because He Is Not Single.

AUBURN, Neb, Dec. 19.—L. W. Little, defeated candidate for sheriff in Nemaha county, who itemized his expense account for the campaign, detailing silk stockings, powder puffs, kissing old maids and babies, joining church and milking farm cows, has received dozens of letters from every part of the United States, inclosing clippings from local papers, some expressing sympathy and others thanks for the "inside" information concerning modern methods of campaigning.

One of the letters, from a woman in Sterling, Col., states: "I have a nice farm including all the necessary buildings and if you are a single man I would be glad to hear from you."

Little says: "As usual my luck is against me."

Many Practical Ways to Make a Boy Happy at Christmas Time

Suits
Any boy would be tickled to get one of these fine suits. If there's any doubt in your mind about it, just recall your own childhood days.
$6.95 to $25.00

OF course there must be toys and candy—Christmas couldn't be Christmas without some of each—but "sensible Santas" know that Boys really appreciate wearable gifts.
And surely gifts that are so useful and so lasting are the most practical gifts to select, so far as the financial end is concerned.
In this ad we have given just a brief review of the fine gift possibilities in our Boys' Own Store.

O'Coats
He may take a moment to look over his other gifts, but we'll wager that that he will not lose much time before trying on his Christmas overcoat.
$5.00 to $25.00

Mackinaws
You know how much boys like mackinaws. They're comfortable and convenient. There's something specially "Christmassy" about their woodland plaids, which recall whole woods of Christmas trees.
$6.50 to $20.00

Sweaters
Coat styles, pull-over styles, heavy weights, light weights; bright colors, quiet colors—and you know full well how much pleasure a boy gets from a sweater.
$1.75 to $12.50

Shirts—Ties
Two or three good shirts with ties to match would make a gift any boy would welcome—especially if you get such attractive ones as these.
Shirts 75c to $5.50
Ties 39c to $1.00

Underwear
You're going to say that underwear is hardly appropriate—but why isn't it, if there's a boy on your list who needs it? He will appreciate its warmth on many a cold day.

Gloves—Mittens
Excellent remembrances at small cost—and at the rate most boys wear them out, they can use new ones most any time. Every style from knit mittens to big leather gauntlet gloves here.
Gloves 15c to $4.50
Mittens 15c to $4.50

Hats—Caps
Is there some particular sort of hat or cap that son has been wanting? Wouldn't just that style be a source of much pleasure on Christmas morning—and afterward?
Hats 50c to $3.50
Caps 65c to $2.50

Good Shoes
Perhaps a pair of those heavy waterproof ones with high tops and buckles would fill the bill—possibly he's more in need of shoes "for best." There are plenty of every kind here.
$2.50 to $6.00

MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Keen Question Claire Foster Wished Madge to Answer.

A WAVE of crimson flooded Claire Foster's face to her temples and ears at my quiet assertion that I was sure there was no reason why I should not see her through the unpleasant situation she was facing. Then it receded, leaving her pallid save for the rouge she had hurriedly put on when I had knocked at her door a few minutes before.

"Thank you," she said in a low voice. "I know there are many women in your position who would not have said that. And I will do anything you say."

"Get dressed, then, quickly, and look your very smartest and prettiest, mind. There are reporters in the hall."

"Oh!" The exclamation held fright and aversion. "I—I can't see them. That's one reason why I kept myself locked in here."

"That was all right when you were by yourself," I returned. "But now it is different. I happen to know that if they see you and Mr. Graham and me together on friendly terms—especially if we are not in the least serious, but treat the whole thing as a joke—there will be no further publicity, for they will have nothing on which to hang a story. They know my attitude already, for I saw them this morning. They are only waiting to ascertain your reaction toward me."

She looked at me fixedly.

"Please tell me just what you mean by that."

I flushed, embarrassed for her as well as myself.

"It won't be particularly pleasant for you to hear," I warned her.

"I know that. But I must hear it, nevertheless."

"You Needn't Tell Me—"

"I will tell you in the exact words of one of them," I said slowly. "'We might as well go home as far as Mrs. Graham is concerned. But there's always the chance that the Foster is really in love with the gallant aviator, and if she is there may be unexpected fireworks.'"

I had turned away my eyes from her face as I spoke. But every nerve in me leaped to the angry, incredulous "What!" which sprang from her lips, followed by a short laugh of utter amazement.

For there was something so genuine in both exclamation and laughter, and both were so palpably directed toward the idea instead of the words I had uttered that one dread which had been in my heart was effectually quieted. I knew Dicky too well to fear that his fancy was engaged beyond the passing moment, but I had been afraid that Claire Foster, young, impressionable, reckless, might have conceived a real affection for him.

She came across to me swiftly, put her hand on my arm, and thrust her face close to mine

"Did you think that, too?" she asked tensely. "Could you really believe that I might be really in love with your husband, instead of having a gloriously reckless time, with no thought of anything save the fun of flying? You're too honest to lie. Ah! You needn't tell me! I can see you did. And yet you came up here to take care of me. Say—you belong out West! You're too big-souled to live alongside these pin-minded Prissies Downeast. Lord! I wish I was back there!"

A Spontaneous Laugh.

I was glad to hear the ridiculous outburst, for I knew that the tension under which she had been holding herself was loosening, and that the danger of an emotional collapse was past. I laughed lightly and struck a casual note as I turned toward the door.

"I'll see to it that only one reporter, and that a very charming woman, comes near you. And you will only have to say a word or two. I'll give you your cue. But be sure to appear gay and at ease, and glad that your dearest, most intimate friend has come to you. Now I'll go and keep Dicky and Mrs. Barker from murdering each other."

"Don't hold your husband back on my account," she said grimly, as I opened the door, and I did not have to force the laugh with which I closed it behind me.

There was a hasty rustle as of skirts around the corner of the corridor, and I guessed that some of the "pin-headed Prissies," to whom Claire had so graphically referred, had not been as well-bred as Mrs. Barker. I accelerated my pace, and, turning the corner, came upon two of the veranda rockers trying not to look hurried or flustered as they walked toward the big sitting-room of the house.

YOUR HEALTH

What to Ask Yourself If You Have a Sore Throat

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Commissioner of Health, New York City
U. S. Senator-Elect from New York State

DR. COPELAND

SORE throat and colds are the result of some fault in your way of living. If you awaken with the symptoms of one of these common ailments, ask yourself these questions:

"Have I lost sleep or have I been sleeping in a poorly-ventilated bedroom?"

"Have I violated the rules of simple living as regards food or drink?"

"Have I smoked too much, or spent too much time in a smoke-filled room?"

"Am I suffering from the lack of proper intestinal action?"

"Have I neglected to walk in the sunlight and to fill my lungs with an abundance of pure air?"

The answer to one of these five questions will suggest the origin of your sore throat.

There are several different conditions which are described as sore throat. For instance, "pharyngitis" is the doctor's name for one such ailment. In this there is a peculiar raw and scraped feeling in the throat. It feels as if the lining membrane had been torn off and salt rubbed into the raw surface.

The "pharynx" is the section which lies between your nose and your vocal cords. When you look into the mirror, the very back part of your throat which you can see behind the down-hanging "uvula" or soft palate, is the pharynx.

The pharynx is lined with mucous membrane, continuous with the nasal passages above, the mouth in front and the windpipe below. Any acute cold or catarrhal condition will readily extend to the pharynx.

For some reason or other, when one is run-down, out-of-sorts, constipated, generally "off the feed" and debilitated, the pharynx often becomes inflamed.

The first day and night there is a feeling of soreness and discomfort. The second day the symptoms are worse, and the second night may be sleepless, so severe is the pain, with constant inclination to swallow.

The third day shows improvement, and by reason of the lessened pain, as well as the exhaustion from loss of sleep, the third night is usually a good one. The fourth day usually marks the end of the discomfort.

Many clergymen have this trouble—indeed, it is often called "preacher's sore throat." Hospital internes, nurses, manicurists, barbers, stenographers, clerks and all others who spend much time in vitiated atmosphere, are liable to attack. When you have once had it, repeated recurrences are to be expected. For this reason, one learns to dread the onset of the ailment.

On the first appearance of sore throat your bowels should be emptied. If the trouble is chronic, particular attention must be given to the correction of constipation if it is present.

For the soreness itself, hot water gargles are useful. Use the water hot as can be borne, and repeat every hour or two.

The raw scraped feeling is due to the excessive acidity of the saliva. Bicarbonate of soda, or ordinary baking soda may be added to the hot water and will be most grateful. Letting a soda mint dissolve in your mouth may give comfort.

An astringent, like tannic acid in glycerine, may be used to paint the throat.

Mouth breathing aggravates any form of sore throat. If the nasal passages are occluded by thickening of the nasal mucous membrane, or if adenoids are present, medical attention is required. In such event, you should consult your family doctor. Furthermore, if you are run-down and have been out of sorts for some time, you should see your good friend, your physician.

Remember always that sore throat is only a symptom. It may be due to the pharyngitis we have just described, or it may come from tonsilitis, from rheumatism of the muscles of the neck, from any one of several different diseases.

It is wise to determine the exact cause so that no time is wasted in finding a speedy cure.

Answers to Health Questions

L. O. L. Q—Will you please tell me what to do for an oily skin?

A—Hot and cold applications, applied to the face alternately, each for ten minutes daily will improve this condition.

• • •

T. E. R. S. Q—I am a man over 60 years of age, and am greatly troubled with my eyes watering on the slightest provocation. This causes me great embarrassment, and I would like to know how to overcome this trouble.

A—It may be that your glasses need changing. You should consult an eye specialist for an examination, and he will prescribe treatment for you.

• • •

B. K. Q—Please tell me whether anything can be done to cure one of snoring.

A—Almost invariably, snoring is the result of mouth breathing. The first essential in the cure, therefore, is to restore normal breathing through the nose. This may be impossible on account of adenoids, catarrhal thickening of the nasal tissues or excessive nasal secretions. For relief, a nose and throat specialist should be consulted for an examination and treatment.

Good Night Stories

BETTY FINDS A NEW FRIEND.

"GET off my hand!" Betty cried, shaking her hand. The poor, frightened little ant flew through the air, head over heels, and lighted on a leaf. "Nasty ants!"

"Tut, tut!" laughed a tiny voice, and Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, hopped down on the grass beside Betty. "That poor little ant didn't mean to frighten you."

"I should say I didn't," piped a soft voice, and Betty turned to see the little ant she had shaken from her hand, smiling at her from the leaf. "Why, I just thought it would be a quicker way across to this leaf. I'm sorry if I frightened you."

"And I'm sorry I was rude to you," said Betty. "Of course, I know ants can't hurt you, no matter what you do to them."

"Just a second!" laughed Squeedee. "That time you guessed wrong. Mrs. Ant, here, is one ant that can harm you should you first do her an injury. Can't you, Mrs. Ant?"

"I'm afraid Squeedee's right," Mrs. Ant laughed. "I haven't used my stinger—"

"Stinger!" Betty exclaimed. "I thought bees were the only insects around here that carried stingers. You surely must be fooling me."

"Indeed, I'm not," Mrs. Ant laughed. "If you don't believe me, I'll just show you."

Mrs. Ant lifted up the hind part of her little body. "See, it's made in three parts," she explained. "There's the sack for the poison, the little needle that does the pricking, and the case to keep the needle in." Betty could see the tiny needle. It was very light in color and looked like a wee thorn.

"But how in the world can you use that funny little needle?" asked Betty. "I should think it would be very hard to use because it is so far back from your head."

"Just a Second!"

"I don't need my head to sting with," laughed Mrs. Ant. "I use my jaws to bite with, but I haven't had to do that for so long that I hardly know how any more.

"When I get angry and feel I've taken all I can stand from my enemy I seize him with my jaws in the part I wish to sting, then lift my body up in my hind legs, so"—and Mrs. Ant went through odd antics as she talked—"then I swing my stinger under, so that I can drive the needle into the place I'm holding with my jaws."

"And what does that do to people?" Ant.

"Pooh!" she exclaimed. "It never asked Betty, backing away from Mrs. hurts them more than a pin prick, I guess, but sometimes it kills my ant enemies and a great many insects. Gracious, I think I'll have to try it out on some one, one of these days," she added merrily, "or my needle may get rusty from never using it."

"Just as if it could," replied the elfin with a smile. "No, there's not a friendlier meadow person living than Mrs. Ant. She very seldom fights."

"I haven't time," Mrs. Ant laughed. "And if some of you giant folks would take less time for quarreling and more time for making merry the world would be better off."

With a cheery bob of her little black head Mrs. Ant scurried away through the grasses.

"She's right," Betty laughed, but when she turned around the little elfin also had disappeared.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

Some New Ideas for Easily-Made Christmas Gifts.

AFTER making out our Christmas gift lists we should go over them and opposite each name put down articles that suggest themselves as suitable gifts, then on the outside margin of the paper write down about how much we wish to spend on each gift. It is a good idea to visit various gift shops and exchanges in town or a nearby larger town, and see what is to be had, with an eye to copying things that are not too difficult to make at home.

If you have been wise, you have saved all the tops of your long kid gloves in black, white or colors, for they are worth a lot at this season. Out of two dark brown tops a charming tobacco bag can be made. The round bottom is cut, and the top, after seaming, is gathered on and stitched by sewing machine. The top is turned over, notched and stitched, then two buttonholes are worked at the sides, and two brown silk soutache cords are run in to draw it tight. The man's initials may be worked on the bottom if desired. Men love these bags, and there are none to be purchased like them. White tops make charming needlebook covers, and are also used for home-made baby bootees, stitched and crocheted with colored silk in pink or blue.

The silk throw for the new baby's crib is easily made. Take one and a quarter yards of pale blue or pink Chinese silk and the same amount of white silk. Place one width of the white silk on the table and lay on it a piece of cheesecloth, cover with a sheet of wadding, then another piece of cheesecloth, and the colored silk. Baste these layers of cloth with long stitches to keep the filling in place, then turn in the edges and baste firmly. Thread a worsted needle with baby ribbon the color of the silk, and tuft the throw, tying in little square bows on the white side, then feather-stitch the edge of the white side in colored silk. If wished, the edges may be crocheted in silk scallops or a dainty ruche of lace may be set on.

Two yards of three-inch-wide satin ribbon in white and a color make a charming handkerchief case. Seam the ribbon strips together to within six inches of one end. Do this with overhand stitches or fine cat-stitching. Turn back and hem in an inch deep hem at the closed end, then turn it up a full quarter of a yard and stitch the sides in the same way the middle was stitched. Next, carefully fringe the loose ends back to the place where the material is stitched together, then with a narrow ribbon to match the color, tie it tightly, bag-top fashion. Fold the end over the bag end. Inside the bag make a plain white silk sachet and tack it to the sides, making it the exact size of the bag. This makes a very dainty, attractive and also inexpensive gift.

Sets of lingerie straps are always an acceptable present for a girl friend, and in using shirred ribbon over the bands, make sure that it is long enough to allow the rubber to stretch to its full capacity. The bows at the top are embellished with embroidery, hand-painting or beading. A recent set made was in corn color, and was daintily beaded in jet, a rather novel and decidedly good idea.

Table-linen straps are generally made of embroidered linen, so that they may be laundered, with the elastic arranged so that it runs in and out easily. Embroidered silk-mull tea-aprons are used for gifts quite frequently, and are very dainty. Tray cloths and napkins for the tea-table are always acceptable, and are very attractive made in gay peasant coloring.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT The Principal Thing

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

KEEP your feet on the ground, my dear friend—keep your feet on the ground! That's the principal thing for you to do.

"No, there is no medicine I can give you, and nobody can help you, but just one person, and that person is—you."

That's what the great physician said when he opened the door and let his patient, who was also his good friend, out of the office.

I was glad when the doctor said that, for I love his patient, too, and she is also my good friend, and I am worried about her—dreadfully worried.

She's been reading books, queer books, about spirits and ghosts, and telepathy and soul-voices. And she's been going to lectures.

And then she's been sitting for hours with a bandage over her eyes, trying to write with the ouija board. And now, she gets messages.

All hours of the day and night, these messages are tapped on her hands by invisible fingers. And when you ask her how she can read what they say, she says:

"I don't have to read the messages. I know them without that."

"Look Here, Mary"

And at night she hears voices, strange whispering voices, telling her to do this, and not to do that—warning, pleading, commanding. And she's almost beside herself trying to make up her mind what to do. So we persuaded her to go to the doctor, and talk it over with him, and he told her so many sensible things.

He didn't shock or frighten her by telling her about the men and women in the big white house with the barred windows upon the hill, and how so many of them began just as she is beginning.

He didn't show her book after book, written by specialists who make a study of just these strange maladies that afflict the human brain.

He reasoned with her on her own level of thought.

"Look here, Mary," he said, "I've known you all my life and you've always been a good sensible person—only you always did like to 'play pretend,' as you used to say.

"Do you remember," he smiled, "when you used to play pretend that you were a great queen, and we were all your vassals, whatever they may be? You always dreamed dreams and saw visions, and we all loved you for it, but in your regular, every-day life you had plenty of common sense.

Now These Voices—

"Tell me, Mary, what would you do if someone walked up to you on the street and said: 'Madame, turn around and go home, you should not be down town today'?

"A perfect stranger, I mean!

"Then suppose that in the very next block a woman you never saw in your life, stopped you and told you to go and get another hat because she didn't like the one you were wearing?

"What would you think of these people? What would you think of yourself, if you paid any attention to them?

"Now these voices you hear—you don't know anything about them. You haven't the faintest idea whose voices they are. Why should you give yourself over to them? How do you know what they are trying to do with you?

"Of course, I don't think you hear any voices at all. I think your nerves are out of order, and they act just like a telephone wire, or an electric bell wire, that is out of order. Haven't you ever heard a bell that buzzed and buzzed when there was no one ringing it? Well, that is what your nerves are doing. They are buzzing and making you hear things, when there is nothing to hear.

"Now, Mary, you go home and eat good food and read agreeable books, and get agreeable people around you—sane, well-balanced, sensible people, and Mary—you keep your feet on the ground!"

I do hope Mary will take the good doctor's advice, and I am very thankful to him for giving it to her as kindly as he did.

Dear Mary, she is too fine, and too high-minded, and too good in every way, to be made the plaything of a set of diseased nerves!

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

How Lucy Stone Started the Feminist Movement.

"MY NAME is the symbol of my identity."

This is the slogan of the Lucy Stone League, a society of women who retain their maiden names after marriage. They believe that because a woman marries she should not lose her identity and merge it with her husband's by taking his name.

They chose Lucy Stone as the name for the league because Lucy Stone was the first woman to retain her own name after marriage. She was one of the earliest pioneers of the modern feminist movement to make women equal to men in all social and political privileges.

Lucy Stone was a courageous woman. In her day it required great courage boldly to defy the customs and traditions of generations and to introduce a new theory into firmly-entrenched conventions.

Lucy Stone revolted against the domination of man at an early age. Her father was a good father and a fine husband, but overbearing. The Stone household was run for one person, Lucy's father, Francis Stone.

When Lucy Stone asked to go to college her father said:

"Are you crazy?"

Nevertheless, this ambitious girl set out to make enough money to take her to Oberlin, the only college at that time open to women.

She picked berries and taught in country schools in Massachusetts, her home, until she had saved seventy dollars. Then she started for Oberlin, Ohio.

While at college, Lucy did housework at three cents an hour, and taught in the preparatory school. All this time she managed to stand first in her class.

She was the first woman in the state of Massachusetts to hold a college degree.

Immediately after her graduation, Lucy Stone started lecturing on "Women's Rights."

The contempt with which such a proceeding was considered is illustrated by the following notice of her lecture given by a clergyman in Massachusetts:

"I am asked to give notice that a hen will attempt to crow like a cock in the town hall at five o'clock tomorrow evening. Those who like such music will, of course, attend."

"Are You Crazy?"

In 1855 a group of people in Memphis, Tenn., put a price of ten thousand dollars on Lucy Stone's head on account of her activities against slavery.

At this time a young merchant of Cincinnati heard her speak and vowed he would marry her. Henry Ward Beecher, Lucy Stone's devoted friend, gave the young man a letter of introduction to her.

Lucy Stone fell in love with Henry B. Blackwell as he had with her, and they were married. With her husband's full consent and approbation Lucy Stone retained her maiden name and kept up her work, not only for the emancipation of slaves, but of women.

Her dying words to her daughter were:

"Make the world better."

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Describes a Smart Navy Blue Daytime Frock.

JUDITH SMITH and I have just returned from a charity fashion show. Early in the afternoon she 'phoned me. "I have two tickets to tea," she said, enthusiastically. "It's to be a fashion-show affair, and all the smart people will be there."

"We must go," I agreed.

We arranged to meet at the hotel where the fashion show was to be held at four o'clock. As I was early, I strolled through the park a while first, and had a pleasant time watching the tame squirrels and the playful children.

"I'll go over early," I thought to myself. "If I wait in the lobby I'll probably see many smart costumes on the people who come in."

Finding a comfortable seat on a long, high-backed divan, I settled myself to watch the arrivals. A hotel lobby is a most interesting place, I think, for you see all kinds of people coming and going. Most of them are sleek, well-dressed people, and this afternoon they seemed particularly so.

"You're early, too," a voice said at my elbow, and I turned to find Judith seated beside me.

"I'm enjoying the people," I commented. "Shall we go down to the tea-room now?"

"Not until you've met a friend of mine who I think will be the loveliest manikin here," Judith said.

I followed her into one of the dressing-rooms, and was presented to a lovely, black-haired girl whom Judith introduced as "Miss Swope."

"Adele, that's a stunning gown," Judith told her.

"It's the frock I wear for my first appearance. I do think it's unusual," Miss Swope returned, whirling about so we could get the effect.

"The sleeves are intriguing," I commented, noting how they were joined to the dress only at the top of the shoulder.

"And more than that I'm interested in the Egyptian inspiration, which is very evident in the motif that hangs at the front."

"Yes," agreed Miss Swope. "I went to a fancy-dress ball a while ago, and my Egyptian costume had the same kind of beaded ornament at the front."

"It probably had a girdle that wrapped low about the hips like that black satin one, too?" I interrogated.

"Yes, it did," she said.

"I like the gold braid that marks off the girdle portion of the frock," Judith said.

"You see, the dress is really all in one piece, but this braid treatment gives the effect of an inset girdle," Miss Swope explained again.

"Your jet earrings are lovely," I told her.

"I thought they went well with this frock," she remarked. "I like earrings very much, but I don't like them with everything."

"I agree with you," I said. "Neither do I like them on everybody."

Judith thought it was time for us to find our reserved table, so we went off to wait for the manikin parade.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 20.

According to this day's planetary operations, perplexing and contradictory situations may be confronted. While there is not a positively sinister conflict of the planets, yet there are indications of difficulties to overcome and stubborn conditions to meet. Affairs may take on a peculiar or inexplicable character, and the health may prove a disturbing or interfering factor. Important moves may be inadvisable. Less intricate and more pleasant conditions may be looked for in affairs outside of business.

Those whose birthday it is may face a year of somewhat baffling situations. They should avoid change and care for the health. Happy home conditions may be expected. A child born on this day will be clever, artistic and affectionate, but may have difficulties to meet.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a maiden lady 35 years of age. About six months ago, a bachelor of middle-age moved into our neighborhood.

During his residence here, I have learned to admire him greatly. As he is of a very retiring nature and does not go out much in society, I have never been introduced to him. Can you please suggest a way in which I may secure an introduction to him without appearing forward?

LONESOME.

LONESOME: You will have to wait until you can be introduced to the gentleman by a mutual friend.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have just moved here and I'm so lonesome I don't know what to do.

There are a number of pretty girls in our neighborhood, but I have never met any of them.

How can I become acquainted with these girls without appearing fresh? KENNETH B.

KENNETH B.: Can't you make the acquaintance of some of the young men by going to a church or to the Y. M. C. A.? Then they would undoubtedly introduce you to their sisters and friends.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have kept company with a young man for seven years. But now he says he is not going with me any longer. He has kept company with another girl for a month. He told me the other day he was going to marry her.

I love him dearly. Must I try to forget him and go out with others, or can I win him back? He has told me lots of times he loves me dearly, and said several times that we would get married just as soon as he made a home. BROKEN-HEART.

BROKEN HEART: This man has been very thoughtless and inconsiderate of you, my dear. Try to forget him and become more interested in your other friends.

I have been in spotless houses
Where true comfort did not reign,
Where I feared to move a cushion—
And I did not go again!
Make your home just as attractive
As you try to make yourself;
But, in pursuit of neatness,
Don't put comfort on the shelf!

CATTLE FEEDING INCREASES

THIS STATE HAS 17 PER CENT OF TOTAL NUMBER.

Industry Made Possible Thru Co-operation of Railroads, Stockyard Companies and Other Sources.

An increase of 25 per cent in cattle on feed this year in Nebraska is announced by A. E. Anderson of the division of crop and live stock estimates. The eleven corn belt states give an average increase of 2 per cent compared to a year ago. The great importance of Nebraska as a cattle feeder state is shown by the fact that this state has 17 per cent of the total number of feed in the eleven corn belt states. This report on the cattle feeding industry was made possible thru the splendid cooperation of railroads, stock yard companies, cattle feeders and other sources.

The six corn belt states west of the Mississippi river average 30 per cent increase while the five states east of the river have a 20 per cent increase. The largest increase is in Iowa which is estimated at 50 per cent, followed by Illinois with 35 per cent and Nebraska, Missouri and South Dakota with 25 per cent each. The order in which the larger increases occur corresponds closely to the corn situation as shown by the present crop and stocks of old corn.

The total carlot receipts of cattle at Nebraska feeding stations for the months of August, September, October and November were 34 per cent more than for the same period last year. As nearly as can be determined, 66 per cent of the cattle on feed in Nebraska were shipped in and 34 per cent raised locally.

Weight classifications of feeder cattle in Nebraska at the time they were received by the feeders were as follows: 1000 lbs., and over, 35 per cent; 750 to 1000 lbs., 30 per cent; 750 lbs., and under, (not including baby beefs), 18 per cent; and baby beef calves, 17 per cent, as determined from an individual feeder survey. Intentions expressed as to the time of marketing were as follows: 13 per cent in December; 12 per cent in January; 18 per cent in February; 17 per cent in March; 13 per cent in April; 10 per cent in May and 17 per cent in June. These plans may vary somewhat according to the market prices.

The individual feeder survey in Nebraska indicated that 10 per cent of the cattle on feed were purchased direct from the range; 56 per cent from public stock yards and 34 per cent were raised locally.

According to individual feeders returns from the corn belt states the percentage of different weights of cattle when placed on feed were as follows: 1000 lbs., and over 30 per cent; 750 to 1000 lbs., 32 per cent; 75 lbs., and down (not including baby beefs), 20 per cent; baby beef calves, 18 per cent. The expressed intention of feeders as to the time of marketing cattle thruout the corn belt states was as follows: 15 per cent in December, 14 per cent in January, 12 per cent in February, 13 per cent in March, 11 per cent in May, and 19 per cent after June 1. However market conditions and prices may modify this.

Shipments of stocker and feeder cattle from 67 public stock yards from August 1 to December 1 were the largest ever recorded being 2,620,000 as against 1,868,000 in 1921, 1,935,000 in 1920, 2,570,000 in 1919, 2,449,000 in 1918 and 2,415,000 in 1917. For the eleven months January 1 to December 1 the shipments this year have only been exceeded by those of 1918 and 1919.

In the year 1919 when the largest yearly shipments of stocker and feeder cattle on record were made, the shipments into the eleven corn belt states during the four months August 1 to December 1 were 1,580,000 head, with 475,000 going to the five states east of the Mississippi and 1,105,000 to the six states west in 1920, 1,189,000 went into these states, with 322,000 east and 667,000 west; in 1921, 1,262,000 with 384,000 east and 875,000 west; in 1922, 1,967,000 head with 534,000 east and 1,433,000 west. While prices realized by growers of feeding cattle have been disappointedly low this year compared to those prevailing for some years prior to 1921 it would seem that only the available supplies of feed in the corn belt and the financial ability and disposition of corn belt feeders to buy has made possible the maintenance of a market for these cattle at even these prices.

Because of the decreased acreage of sugar beets and higher prices of hay there is a considerable decrease in cattle on pulp feed in Colorado, western Nebraska and Wyoming. There is a small increase in the big hole basin in Montana and a 15 per cent increase in Utah, while the numbers in Nevada and Idaho are the same. A special survey of the Lancaster, Pa. district indicates an increase of 10 per cent of cattle on feed this year, with the numbers estimated at 129,000 as against 117,000 in 1921, 129,000 in 1920 and 127,000 in 1919.

This increased feeding does not necessarily mean a proportional increase in cattle received at markets during the next five or six months as the proportion of grain fed cattle in the total receipts even at Chicago, which received the highest percentage of grain finished cattle, very seldom exceeds 60 per cent.

THE UNCONSCIOUS SINNER

By Hazel Deyo Batchelor

(Copyright, 1922, by The Public Ledger Company.)

Because Cleo Ridgefield refuses to marry him, Dick Wheeler attempts to commit suicide. He is saved by the intervention of his guardian, Carey Phelps, and Carey, who is cynical about women anyway, believes Cleo to be a scheming adventuress, and decides to pay her back in her own coin. His plan is to meet her and to win her love, and then afterward to tell her his real opinion of her. Carey meets Cleo at a dance, and she is strangely attracted toward him. He begins his campaign immediately by sending her a huge box of American Beauty roses.

CHAPTER XIII.

Bob Interferes.

Cleo had forgotten all about Bob Ellsworth. She felt as if she were treading on air, and even when the telephone rang her heart beat fast with the hope that it might be Carey Phelps.

She flew to answer it, but almost immediately her happiness was clouded.

"Cleo, this is Bob Ellsworth talking. I must see you. I think you owe an explanation for what happened last night."

"Oh, Bob!" She almost gasped the words.

"When will you let me see you? And why did you run away like that?"

"I ran away, because I didn't want to listen. Oh, Bob, can't you understand? Please don't say anything more."

"Oh I see," the boy's voice was cutting. Cleo could almost see his angry face as he spoke the words, and it did more than make her unhappy; it filled her with vague misgivings, it brought back all the old fear that Dick's threat had roused in her. "I see," he went on, "you're tired of me now, because some one new has appeared on the scene. You had it all figured out that you could drop me whenever it happened to suit your fancy. Is that it?"

Cleo had a sense of unreality. It couldn't be true that she was standing here at the telephone listening to such words from Bob Ellsworth. She had an impulse to ring off, but she was afraid and Bob was so angry that he wouldn't even allow her to defend herself.

"It's that man you met last night. You needn't deny it!"

"I do deny it," Cleo was furious herself now. "And I refuse to allow you to talk to me like this. You're not fair, and I won't listen to you. Good-by!" And with shaking fingers Cleo put the receiver back on the hook.

She was sorry for Bob until he had brought Carey Phelps into it, but that had been the last straw. As to her meeting with Carey Phelps had made any difference in the way she felt toward Bob. As tho she could ever feel for Bob this mad, sweet stirring of the pulses that she felt for Carey Phelps! That Bob should expect such a thing when she had given him no reason to believe that she cared for him filled Cleo with anger.

She went back to her unfinished breakfast, but the glory of the day was spoiled for her.

Even the two huge vases filled with roses brought no glad thrill to her heart. Bob had spoiled everything, and try as she would, she could not recapture the glad happiness that Carey Phelps' gift had brought her.

That this should come just now! That was her one thought, and searching her heart carefully, she was certain that she had done nothing to encourage Bob, save perhaps allowing him to see her. She blamed herself for that, but how could she know that Bob would get such foolish ideas in his head, and suppose Carey Phelps were to hear things, and to believe them about her! Suppose he were to condemn her without giving her a chance!

Cleo began actually to doubt herself. She began to wonder if, after all, she hadn't acquired a reputation for playing fast and loose with men. She wasn't at all sure that Bob loved her, and if his feeling were largely one of hurt pride, it would be easy for him to say things about her that weren't true.

Suppose a hint of such gossip should reach Carey Phelps. Suppose even now people spoke of her as a vamp who let men make love to her for the thrill there was in it! What would he think of her, what would any man think of a woman like that? And yet if she had done wrong, she had been entirely unconscious of it in every case.

Tomorrow—Bob is Persistent.

BANDITS ROB JEWELERS

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick of Waterloo, Ia., Lose $4,000 in Gems.

WATERLOO, Ia., Dec. 19.—Three masked bandits last night bound and gagged Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Frederick, jewelers, and escaped with jewelry valued at more than $4,000.

The robbery was one of the boldest in theh istory of the city and was committed during an after supper rush of Christmas shoppers.

GLANDS AND MONKEY FUR.

PARIS.—(By Mail.)—Dr. Vornoff's experiments with monkey glands are going to have the effect of raising the price of monkey fur, now a fashionable trimming for women's clothes. The newspapers Comedia point out that if science is going to appropriate most of the available monkeys, the cost of the fur must inevitably rise. At a recent auction, where a large chimpanzee was sold, Dr. Vornoff turned out to be the highest bidder acquiring the animal for 5,000 francs.

WINTERS GETTING WARMER.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—American winters are geting warmer, weather statistics announced here. November just passed was third among the warmest Novembers on record.

Since January 1, 1910, there have been 97 months in which temperatures have been above normal and only 47 below. Since August 14, 1920, the mercury has not gone below normal except between June 20 and July 28, 1922. Summer was 47 days longer than usual this year. The growing season began on April 1 and ended November 15. The average season is 189 days.

HUNT POISON PEN WRITER

ENGLISH TOWN DISRUPTED BY STREAM OF NOTES.

Woman Believed to Be Author of Letters Which Have Caused Tragedy and Suffering.

LONDON, Dec. 19—Scotland Yard has set out to find the hand behind the poisoned pen whose acid strokes, during two years of scurrilous annonymous letters, have beaten into the hearts of hundreds of residents of the seaside town of Littlehampton, near Brighton.

Husbands and wives have been estranged, daughters cast out, homes broken up, lives wrecked, suicided and murders even have been caused by or attributed to the foul charges with which the letters are filled.

Two innocent women have been prosecuted as authors of them.

Local and county police have sought since 1920 for the author of the letters. Now some of the best detectives in the famous Scotland Yard force have been assigned to the case.

All the evidence they have to work upon is:

1—Bundles of hundreds of somewhat shakily printed letters, making terrible charges against bankers, clergymen, businessmen, wives, sweethearts, even mothers and children; some of them sent as far as India to relatives and friends of the victims.

2—Knowledge that none of the persons ever suspected could have written the letters.

Woman Author.

3—The probability that a woman is the author; probably someone whose life was soured thru sorrow or secret sins.

Scotland Yard was called in following a revival of the letters.

The letters are as prolific as their charges are varied—immorality, unfaithfulness, dishonesty, deceit, perversion, disease.

It was two years ago that the plague was visited upon Littlehampton. From a particular neighborhood the letters spread over the little town of 8,500 people, then thruout the country. The letters circulated to London and finally to the outposts of the British empire—wherever a husband or sweetheart, relative or friends of the victim could be reached.

All the letters show an intimate knowledge of affairs, public and private, in the town. Some of the letters are easily proved untrue, others have done the work their authors intended for them.

Housewife Imprisoned.

A local housewife was prosecuted for sending the letters and sentenced to ten days' imprisonment. Soon after her release, the letters began to carry their foul messages thruout the empire. The woman was arrested again, convicted and sentenced to a year's imprisonment. While she was serving her sentence they began again. Finally it was found that the woman in jail could not have written them. She was released and compensated by the British government. Her accuser at her two trials, a spinster, was arrested. She was tried, but by the judge's order the jury acquitted her, because of the weakness of the case for the prosecution.

The plague lay dormant for a time. Now it is again epidemic.

ORCHARDS THRIVE IN NORTH.

PENTICTON, British Columbia.—(By Mail.)—There are 3,000 commercial orchards in the Okanagan valley, British Columbia.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Gross Profits From Gridiron Breaks Records

The gross profits from football the past season has shattered all records at Nebraska university, according to a statement issued Tuesday by John Selleck, business manager. A total gross profit of $37,122.13 is shown on his report. Cost of equipment and several other items have not been deducted from this amount but it represents pretty closely the amount which was cleared on football.

The amount already taken in is $10,000 over the receipts of any previous year, counting the "gate' on all athletics.

Mr. Selleck also figured up the paid admissions to all games. This number does not represent the total crowd but just the spectators who paid. These figures:

South Dakota at Lincoln	2,850
Missouri at Lincoln	11,191
Oklahoma at Norman	6,104
Syracuse at Syracuse	11,160
Kansas at Lawrence	14,570
Kansas Aggies at Lincoln	5,345
Ames at Lincoln	4,136
Notre Dame at Lincoln	13,335

Investigate Remark of Referee Miller

The boxing commission had received no report Monday of the investigation which was started when the report was circulated that Referee Dave Miller stated after the Dave Shade-Frankie Schoell bout at Omaha, that he had been offered $500 to throw the fight to Schoell.

Assistant Commissioner Kilmartin of Omaha is conducting the investigation. H. H. Antles, chairman of the commission, stated that it was fully an hour after the bout was over before he heard of Miller's alleged statement charging Omaha gamblers with offering the bribe.

"If true, this constitutes a very serious offense. Mr. Miller, I presume, has returned to his home in Chicago. If he was approached in the matter of accepting a bribe we will certainly conduct a thoro investigation," Mr. Antles stated.

PERU LOSES MANY PLAYERS

Graduation Wrecks Gridiron Squad, Leaving But Few Veterans.

PERU, Neb., Dec. 19.—The football prospects at the local high school for next year have rather a gloomy aspect when one looks at the number graduating this year. Thirteen letter men are graduating this coming spring, leaving but a few letter men for Coach Yerkes to work up his squad next fall.

The captain-elect, Everett Heywood, will be a strong man on the line and can help materially in holding a solid wall, as he did this year. Robert Bath, captain this year, will probably be back next fall and will be a power around which to form a back field. A number who played parts of several games this year will of course be back altho they did not play enough this year to win a letter.

The letter men who will probably not be back next year are:

Howard Bath	John Jones
Lawrence Bernard	Charles Parriott
Cecil Coatney	Jenning Parriott
Francis Conkle	Harland Taylor
Orville Conkle	Roy Vanderford
George Cowell	Ralph Williams.

TEX HICKARD GAVE PURSE TO THE WOMEN BOXERS

BERLIN.—(By Mail.)—Tex Rickard offered the biggest purse ever put up in German fight circles and for women boxers.

Rickard, thru his European manager, Leon Britton, supplied this purse—one million marks—for the winner of the international boxing matches in the Palais der Friedrichstadt here.

This purse—tho the smallest dollar purse ever put up by the Madison Square promoter—was twice as large as the purse offered recently in the Sampson-Breitenstrater championship match. When the American Sampson defeated the heavyweight champion of Germany he received only half a million marks, much of which was offered by fans in the audience. Georges Carpentier, a spectator of the downfall of Breitenstrater, gave 200,000 marks to his former sparring partner, Sampson.

The million mark purse offered for the ladies' bout by Rickard cost him about $150. The lady boxers of the famous Fischer troup gave preliminary exhibitions before the main match between "Lady" Fischer, the German leader of the troupe and "Fraulein" Kuehn, a promising pugess from Hamburg. The bout lasted ten rounds and was fought with six-ounce gloves.

German fans are showing great interest in the female bouts, being staged at various cabarets about the city

—Wide World Photos

If Micky Walker could only duplicate the performance of Mrs. Dave Shade and have Harry Etrie doing what Baby Billy is doing, counting the fatal ten, Micky's troubles in the welterweight division would be over at least temporarily

Shade won a ten-round decision over Frankie Schoell in their bout at Omaha last week This should entitle him to a chance at Walker's crown.

Creighton Has Seven Veterans.

CREIGHTON, Neb., Dec. 19.—With seven letter men back prospects for a winning team are fairly bright altho Superintendent C. E. Mason is making no rash promises for his team until he has seen it in action. The letter men on the squad are John Burt, Edward Bush, Cecil Gardner, Edward Fischer, Ivan Johnson, Ernest Nicholaisen and Edward Viterna. Some new material is extending the veterans. The schedule:

December 19—Crofton at Creighton.
December 22—Verdigre at Creighton.
January 5—Pierce at Pierce
January 12—Randolph at Randolph.
January 19—Norfolk second at Creighton.
January 26—Niobrara at Niobrara.

Peru Believes It Has Winner.

PERU, Neb., Dec. 19.—Prospects for a winning basketball team in Peru high school this year are bright. Altho there are but three letter men back there is an abundance of good material which Coach Yerkes expects to develop into a strong team.

There are more than thirty reporting regularly for practice. The squad has had to be divided into two sections. The schedule of games is about complete altho there are one or two open dates. This year a schedule for the second team and the girls' basketball team will be worked out as well as one for the first team. The first team schedule:

January 5—Falls City at Peru.
January 12—Peru at Plattsmouth.

John McGraw Tells Life Story in State Journal

John J. McGraw is writing a series of articles on "My Thirty Years in Baseball," which every fan, young and old, will enjoy reading.

The appeal of this great serial will not stop with the baseball fan, but all sport lovers, men and women alike, all who admire the story of a poor boy fighting and persevering to the glorious leadership of his chosen field, will be captivated.

It will start in The Journal on January 5 and appear daily thereafter. Don't miss it.

McGraw Tightens Purse Strings and Declares Days of the High Priced Ball Players are no More

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, Dec 19—Days of the $75,000 and $100,000 ball player have gone with lots of other things of the good old days, in the opinion of John J. McGraw, one of the champion spenders in the game.

He Stops, Spending Stops.

The leader of the Giants, who handed out approximately $150,000 in the last year for two players, Jimmy O'Connell and Jack Bentley, does not believe that the crop of good players has been exhausted but he makes the point that he will not spend any more large sums for players, and when he stops spending, the spending stops.

Along with some other men in the business, McGraw says that the new agreement reached by the major leagues to foil the minors who are bucking the draft will result in the stopping of all high sales.

Subject to Draft.

Under the new plan of beating the draft, the majors have agreed not to send any players to the minors unless it is agreed they are subjected to the draft.

It is the insistence of the New York Yankees to make the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league agree to this plan that is holding up the sale of Jakey May, the diminutive southpaw of the coast.

Historic Bets on American Tracks.

The following is the fourth of a series of articles on big bets made on the turf. A story on how Riley Grannan created a sensation on English tracks will be printed on these pages tomorrow:

One of the biggest coups ever put over by "Pittsburgh Phil" was on Lord Turco. This horse brought the plunger $250,000, according to his brother, William Smith. The story of Lord Turco is typical of the methods that gained a fortune for "Pittsburgh Phil."

Lord Turco cost $1,500 and he was the best investment in horseflesh ever made by an American bettor "I bought the colt because I considered him the best looking yearling I had seen in 1901," says William Smith. "I would have given $5,000 if that sum had been asked, because George liked him too He was out of sorts as a two-year-old and looked like a poor investment until he got to Saratoga in the summer of 1903, when he began to pick up. One day I sent him out with Eugenia Burch, then the best mare in training, for a trial gallop of one mile and a furlong, and he astonished me by beating her handily. There was no discounting such a performance Eugenia was a generous worker and she made the three-year old gallop all the way I was for starting Lord Turco right off and winning a modest bet, but George advised delay. The touts had seen the workout and we were afraid we would not get a price. With characteristic foresight he planned to win a fortune and with his usual patience he waited for the right opportunity.

Secret Workouts.

"We kept Lord Turco thru all that remained of the Saratoga meeting and also the Sheepshead bay fall meeting, about five weeks, working 'm as secretly as possible and always heavily bandaged, to create the impression that he was wabbly on his underpinning Finally we picked a race of one mile and a sixteenth at Gravesend that paid about $1,000 to the winner and announced the stable boy Do Sousa as the rider. That fooled the touts some No one believed that George, whose weakness for good riders was well known, would back a horse with De Sousa in the saddle To further befog the enemy I sent Lord Turco out for his preliminary past the stand with a tightly cinched scarf about the neck and shoulders, hoping to create the impression that he was wind broken.

"This trick came near spilling the beans. The scarf was bound so tight it prevented Lord Turco from striding more than eight or ten feet and frightened George. He had bet $20,000 before the warm-up and wanted to hedge. I urged him to stand pat and kept him in the paddock. I would have used force if necessary, for I was sure I was right. I never saw George so excited.

Brought Long Odds.

"Well, Lord Turco, laying off the pace for seven-eights, came on in the stretch to win with ease. It was a great relief. The success we had with that horse was astonishing. The public and the big bettors refused to take him seriously. Four days after his first victory he met Janeway, Surmise and Warranted, with several others We got eight to one and won another $90,000. Then he beat Lady Potentate, Namter and Knight of the Garter, and George got three to one for $30,000 We continued to ride De Sousa, and the big bettors all laid off the horse. I considered Lord Turco the best second rater in training, and would have backed him to beat any horse about, barring Blues or Hermis. He won a quarter of a million for George before he broke down in the fall of 1904."

CRIMES AND FIRE PREVAIL

CHICAGO'S POOR SUFFERING FROM THE COLD WAVE.

Many Blazes Reported From Overheated Furnaces and Robbers Work Day and Night.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Death, fire and crime stalked with the cold wave which continued to hold Chicago in its grip today.

Zero temperatures which prevailed over the city for the past three days caused five deaths, thousands of dollars' damage from fire and hundreds of minor robberies.

With freezing weather coming just before the holidays, the crime and fire wave was one of the worst in the history of the city, police declared.

Acute suffering was reported among the poor in several sections of the city and relief societies were rushed with work.

Four men were found frozen to death last night. Another man was killed when he slipped on the icy pavement and fell in the path of a skidding automobile.

The fire department has had hardly a moment's rest in the last three days. More than 200 alarms of fire were answered. Scores of families were forced to flee from their burning homes onto the wind swept streets, clad only in night clothes. Ninety per cent of the fires were caused by overheated furnaces, fire department officials said

Pickpockets, shop lifters, second story workers and holdup men worked overtime ranging from a few dollars to thousands.

"Cold weather always brings crime," police said. "So does the holiday season. Combine them and we have a bad situation."

The weather bureau predicted moderating temperature tonight but indicated another cold wave would follow at the end of the week.

SCHOOL FUNDS TO COUNTIES

REIMBURSED FOR LOSS OF TAX ON STATE LANDS.

Custer and Cherry Lead the List in Amounts Received Under New Provision of School Law.

Under the provisions of the law of 1921 counties containing state school lands are reimbursed from the state temporary school fund with an amount equal to what the tax on state land would be if it were taxable property. Counties containing no state lands get nothing under this law, but the same counties share liberally under the other provisions of the law which says one-fourth of the total funds available shall be distributed equally among the districts and which further says the balance of the state fund shall be apportioned according to school population. Thus the densely populated counties get a larger total than the sparcely settled counties which have state lands

The semiannual apportionment of state school funds just made by the state superintendent show that in the equal division of one-fourth of the fund each district gets $12.75. On the school population basis the counties receive 66 and a fraction cents for each pupil of school age.

The counties that receive nothing from the school land provision are Cuming, Dakota, Fillmore, Hamilton, Nance, Polk, Thayer and Thurston. Dodge county receives a total of 45 cents. Lancaster county $11 29, Douglas county $41.80, while Custer county receives $4,910.65 and Cherry $5,907. Douglas county has 50,433 school population. Lancaster county 25,254 and Custer county, 8,845.

The total semi-annual school apportionment received by Douglas county is $34,366 74; Lancaster, $18,590.48; Custer, $13,975.54; Cherry, $9,855 83. Next in total amount comes Scottsbluff and Lincoln counties with more than $8,000 each and Gage county with a total of $7,792.

School Land Basis.

The following are the amounts received by the counties from the last semi annual apportionment under the provision reimbursing them for an amount equal to what the tax on state lands would be if such lands were taxable.

INSURGENTS RENEW WAR

Irish Rebels Start Bombing and Incendiarism Shortly After Troops Withdraw.

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—Irish republican insurgents renewed their warfare of incendiarism and bombing last night less than twenty-four hours after British troops were withdrawn from the island.

Two bombs were thrown against the building here housing the Irish Independent, only one exploding. It blew in a doorway as the auto load of rebels that swept past hurling the missles fled.

PREFER ONE MILL LEVY

BOARD OF EDUCATION WOULD RETURN TO OLD LAW.

Attorney Prepares Draft of Proposed Amendments Relating to Manner of Issuing Bonds and Term for Which They Run.

The difficulty of securing a quorum in the morning, during the busy winter season, has determined the board of education to meet during January in the afternoon. The next regular meeting will fall January 2 of 1923. A special session will be called soon for a conference with the Lincoln legislative delegation regarding proposed changes in the school laws.

The board's attorney, R. O. Williams, presented a draft of proposed amendments at the meeting Tuesday morning. These include a return to the one-mill levy, instead of the fixed sum for school expenses allowed by the last legislature; a change from thirty to forty years as the limit of time for which bonds may run; and provision for greater freedom for the board in the manner of issuance of bonds. George W. Woods favored a return to a limit of 5 per cent interest for bonds, the last legislature having changed this to 6 per cent.

Other bills not yet drafted by Mr. Williams, but discussed, include a modification of the fire escape ordinance permitting the Lincoln district to conform to city ordinances instead of state laws; provision for an appropriation for maintenance of the school for the deaf and for schooling of dependent children sent to Lincoln from over the state.

A report of condemnation proceedings to secure lots 13 and 14, block 2, Brookline addition, adjacent to the new Elliott building, stated that a settlement could be secured by payment of $3,000 to Mrs. Jennie Carlson for lot 13, which contains a house, and of $1,150 to F. W. Smith for lot 14. The board authorized the payment.

The superintendent of schools presented two plans for re-distribution of pupils the second semester. The first provided for full use of the new Whittier as a junior high. As it seems unlikely that the building can be completed in time, the second program was stressed. This provides for continuation of seventh and eighth grade classes in Bancroft, seventh grade classes at Hayward, seventh and eighth grades at old Whittier and keeping the Twenty-sixth and O street building as a ninth grade school. Without the use of the new Whittier, all these buildings, as well as Clinton and the senior high school, will be greatly overcrowded. Mr. Lefler was not in favor of starting the junior high program until the shops and full equipment are ready.

Dr. E. W. Rowe presented a report on the need of an open air school for Lincoln and its probable expense He estimated provision for fifty children would be needed at the start. The overhead expense for nine months, outside building and equipment was given at $15,000. The cost of building was estimated at $5,000 but was believed by the board to be nearer $25,000.

A motion was adopted that the report be sent to the Kiwanis club, who first brought the matter to the attention of the board asking what cooperation they intended to give. Also an endeavor will be made to get the cooperation of the city board of health and of the local branch of the national tuberculosis society. Mr. Woods believed that the city should provide everything except school equipment and instruction. Adjournment was made to 3:30 p. m., January 2, 1923.

ULTIMATUM IS GIVEN TURKS

CURZON THREATENS TO TERMINATE NEAR EAST CONFERENCE.

If Kemalists Do Not Accept Allied Project for Freedom of Straits by Wednesday, Lausanne Parley Ends.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 19. — Foreign Minister Curzon of Great Britain today announced that unless the Turks accept the allied project for freedom of the Dardanelles by tomorrow, the near east peace conference will be terminated.

This virtual ultimatum was communicated to the Turkish delegates who are considering it.

Curzon declared it was impossible for the allies to accept either the Russian or Turkish counter-proposals for settlement of the straits' problem. Hence, he said it was imperative that the Russians and Turks give their final answer on the allied project.

Foreign Minister Tchitcherin delivered a long speech against the allied project, but Ismet Pasha, the Turk envoy, asked more time. Curzon thereupon flatly fixed tomorrow for the final session of the straits. At that session, he said, the Turks must accept or the conference ends.

Inter-allied police have "repeatedly violated the sanctity of Turkish homes" during the occupation of Constantinople, the Turks declared in a memorandum to the minorities commission.

The troops entered hundreds of homes, tearing former Christian wives and their children from the arms of their husbands, and against their will returned the women to their Armenian domiciles, the memorandum charged.

Stories that Christian women were forced into Turkish harems were characterized as "legendary." When the modern Turk marries a Christian woman the marriage is voluntary on her part and she accepts the religion of the husband in consequence, it was asserted.

The Turkish delegates declared hundreds of babies and older children of these voluntary marriages were forced by allied police to go to Armenian homes.

KIDNAPERS IN SOUTH AMERICA.

RIO DE JANEIRO.—(By Mail.)—Are the persons responsible for the disappearance and possible death of Ambrose Small, wealthy motion picture magnate, who disappeared in Montreal, living in Brazil at this time. An American detective who has just arrived in Rio de Janeiro, says that they will be placed under arrest soon if extradition arrangements can be made.

The stockholders of the Tamarack and Custer Consolidation Mining company voted to increase the capital stock of the corporation from $2,00,000 to $5,000,000.

SARAH BERNHARDT IS UNWILLING TO REST

Famous Actress Declares, Following Attack of Syncope, That Inaction for Her Means Death.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt today sent the following message to her friends in America: "Don't worry about me. It is only one of those little things that persons of my age cannot avoid. I intend to resume my work on the stage and play in tonight's performance."

PARIS, Dec. 19.—"My son insists that I take a rest—but for me, rest means death."

The immortal Sarah Bernhardt, stricken as she was about to appear in Sacha Guitry's new play at the Edward Seventh theater, thus defied the entreaties of friends that she abandon the stage and spend the years that are left her in ease and comfort.

Her physicians, after an anxious night, issued a bulletin at 11 a. m. today which said:

"The crisis fortunately quickly passed, but Madame Bernhardt demands absolute rest for a few days and complete isolation."

This was signed by Doctors Desnos and Obissier.

"There is really no danger," Dr. Desnos later stated. "Madame Bernhardt will live to attend my funeral yet."

The one real peril, however, it is admitted, is Bernhardt's refusal to surrender and concede herself an old woman, despite her seventy-eight years.

"I am going to return to the stage as soon as I have recovered from this slight indisposition," she insisted to friends who urged her to give up.

Her manner was vigorous and she remained bright and cheerful in defiance of the malady, diagnosed by physicians as syncope.

Syncope is fainting followed by stupor.

"In the morning," she said in describing her attack, "I felt suddenly well. Then suddenly I felt as if a dagger had been thrust into my back."

"My whole body was like ice. I was able to call for help and I don't know what happened afterward.

"I don't want to die like Moliere," she insisted. "I am all right now, but if I stop to rest I will die."

Bernhardt was taken ill in her dressing room, just before the crowd began to arrive for the production of "Un Sujet De Roman."

A throng assembled in front of the dark treater and many rumors that the great actress was at the point of death flitted thru the assemblage.

The people dispersed slowly after the announcement was made that the great actress' illness was not considered serious.

Bernhardt was able to go home in her car but suffered a relapse immediately upon reaching there.

Her ailment manifests itself in a series of fainting spells, followed by periods of stupor. It is necessary to restore the patient to her senses with all speed when she is stricken, otherwise death may ensue.

The search for Col. Francis C. Marshall and Lieut. Charles L. Weber, army aviators, missing since December 7, will be continued by land troops.

MAY NOT HOLD AN INQUEST

Matson Sees No Indication of a Violation of the Law in Hamilton's Death.

County Attorney Charles E Matson said Tuesday morning that as far as he knew then there would not be an inquest over the death of Charles Hamilton, Lincoln sanitarium patient who died after leaping out of a third story window in the sanitarium at 3:45 p. m. Monday.

The county attorney said that as far as he had been informed there was no violation of any law in the fact that a patient leaped out of a window and died from the fall. The purpose of an inquest, he explained, is to find out who is to blame for a death when there are attendant circumstances that point to a criminal act, or to foul paly.

His subject was "How the State Mothers Its Unfortunates."

The National Security Fire insurance company has brought an appeal to the supreme court from a judgment in favor of Eunice Fadanelli, entered in the Douglas county district court, on a $2,500 policy on a farm dwelling house. The company says that the policy contained a provision that permits it to restore the destroyed premises, if it prefers, and that it desired to do so in this case because it could do it for $1,250, but the plaintiff refused. She claims that where the property is entirely destroyed, the rebuilding clause is inoperative.

A request was filed with the county commissioners Tuesday morning asking that the board take action to reduce the assessed valuation of the American Railway Express company in this county by the sum of $28,650 County Assessor James A. Sheffield explained to the board that the valuation was too high by that amount on account o' a clerical error, and that the company had been taxed thru error on a valuation just $28,650 too high. It was also asked that a refund be made to the company of the receipts from the surplus valuation. The matter was referred to the county attorney for a written opinion.

From a small business which started in 1908 under the direction of Mr. Carper, until they have become one of the largest jobbers and distributors in the country, the automotive equipment department of the Nebraska Buick Auto company will open a branch office in Omaha, January first. The immense show room in the building now occupied by the Nebraska Buick Auto company is being remodeled so that the equipment division will have a fine display space. The Omaha house will be operated independently of the Lincoln business. Fifteen men will travel out of the Omaha branch and will cover northern Nebraska and western Iowa. This will give both the Lincoln and Omaha houses together a sales force of thirty men. C. L. Carper, general manager of this department will divide his time between Omaha and Lincoln but will continue his residence in Lincoln. J. W. Sherry, formerly sales manager of the Powell Supply company, will be resident manager assisted by W. L. Barry, formerly of the U. S. Rubber company.

The Speejacks was built for him and he and Mrs. Gowen have just completed a voyage which breaks all records for power yachts of its size.

MUST CUT TO THE BONE

County Expenses Bid Fair to Outrun Economy Plan, and Board Is Alarmed.

The expenses of running Lancaster county for the first nineteen weeks of the fiscal year bid fair to outrun the economy plan inaugurated by the late County Clerk W. L. Minor and being continued in force by the commissioners and County Clerk Morgan, according to a report on finance presented Tuesday morning by Mr. Morgan.

The report shows that expenditures are in excess of the plans, and that the board must hold expenditures down to the lowest basis to keep within the lowered estimate. During the first nineteen weeks of the present fiscal year $99,829.79 have been taken out of the general fund, as against $88,454.94 spent in the same period last year; out of the bridge fund $53,641.58 were spent during the first nineteen weeks of the last year, as against $46,631.70 for the same period this year.

PHYSICIAN ASKS DAMAGES

Dr. Murdock Pressing Suit for $100,000 Against Four Men Who Filed Complaint Against Him.

Dr. E. P. Murdock, formerly of Ogallala, now of Alliance, by his attorney, Herbert Baird of Lincoln, took depositions Tuesday in his $100,000 damage suit against the former sheriff and two county commissioners of Keight county. The deposition of Secretary H. H. Antles of the department of public welfare and D. F. Fulton of Lincoln were taken. Mr. Antles was questioned for the purpose of getting into the record the complaints filed with him charging Dr. Murdock with drunkenness and other offenses and asking that his license as a physician be revoked. Mr. Felton was asked to identify signatures of the complainants, Eugene eBall, formerly sheriff of eKith county and W. H. Shireman and S. C. Peterson, both county commissioners and Grover Rodman. Each of these is defendant in a separate $25,000 damage suit. The medical examining board and Secretary Antles found that Dr. Murdock was not guilty of habitual drunkenness and dismissed the complaints and declined to revoke the physician's license. Dr. Murdock later began action in the Keith county district court against the complainants. R. H. Beatty of North Platte, attorney for the defendants, was present Tuesday when depositions were taken. The suit will come up for trial in January.

MODEL LAWS ON WISCONSIN

Czecho-Slovakians Adopt Industrial Laws Originating in the Badger State.

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 19.—A brand new European republic is modelling its statutes on Wisconsin laws.

Czecho-Slovakia, born of the treaty of Versailles and headed by President Masaryk, who spent a year studying American conditions in Chicago and the middle west, is adopting a set of industrial laws that includes not only several that have been put into successful use in Wisconsin, but also some originating here that the badger state has not had the nerve to put into practice.

This information was received here recently by Prof. John R. Commons of the economics department of the University of Wisconsin, author of numerous pioneer workmen's compensation, civil service, and unemployment measures, in a letter from Mary McDowell, head of the Chicago university settlement house and a guest of President Masaryk.

Czecho-Slovakia was freed of Austrian domination and Austrian debts by the Versailles treaty. It is now the only Slavic nation with a stable currency.

The measures to be put into effect, full details of which have been sent by Professor Commons to the new republic, include health, accident, unemployment, and old age insurance laws protecting women and children in industry, and have restricting hours of labor.

The new government is a "model democracy", the president being elected for life, and the reins of government being held by a cabinet and parliament chosen periodically by popular vote.

Professor Commons was the author of the law creating the Wisconsin industrial commission in 1902, the first of its kind and the predecessor of labor departments in practically every state in the union.

SUIT OVER HADDEN WAGES

Jury Is to Decide What Kind of Contract Was Entered Into by Doctor Hufman.

Trial was begun Tuesday morning in District Judge Clements court of the case of Grant Hadden against Dr. Robert W. Hufman, in which Mr. Hadden seeks to recover $2,243.95, alleged due the defendant for work and services performed on the farm of the defendant for nineteen months and a half.

The plaintiff's petition alleges that March 1, 1921, the plaintiff began working for Doctor Hufman at the latter's request, and that so far the doctor has paid him nothing for his labor. He asks $1,950 as wages, $250 for boarding and rooming the doctor on his visits to the place, and $43.95 for supplies purchased to care for stock.

The defendant offers $504.61, alleging that he and Mr. Hadden entered into an agreement by which the place was to be farmed and stock fed on a profit sharing basis, the plaintiff to have one third of the crops and increase of the stock; it is claimed that the $504.61 tendered covers the bill.

COUPLE BURIED IN SAME GRAVE

Omaha Pair Die Within Few Hours of Each Other.

OMAHA, Dec. 19.—Thomas Bowers, seventy, and his wife, Electa, seventy one, were buried in the same grave at a cemetery here today. The couple, after fifty-one years of happy married life, died within a few hours of each other Monday. Bowers died first and then the aged wife, worn out by constant attendance upon her husband for the past several months, succumbed.

COMMITTED TO JAIL ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Victims of Gun Attack by Officers Saturday Night Are Convicted and Auto Confiscated.

Joe M. Wilson and J. L. Little, who were arrested at 11:30 p. m. Saturday with two gallons of hooch after officers had fired a rain of bullets into the back of their auto on the highway a short distance east of Havelock, were arraigned before Judge W. T. Stevens at 9 a. m. Tuesday. Both were fined after entering pleas of guilty. They were unable to pay and were committed to the county jail.

Little was fined $100 and costs on two counts of illegal possession and his Ford car ordered confiscated. Wilson was fined $100 and costs for illegal possession.

The arrests were made Saturday night by Federal Officer Carroll, State Sheriff Schmitt, Detectives Longstreth and Schneible, and Officer Gates of University Place.

ORDERED NOT TO REMARRY

Omaha Judge Grants Mrs. Embry Injunction Restraining Ex-Husband From Wedding Again.

OMAHA, Dec. 19.—Judge W. G. Sears in district court today granted Mrs. Aalta A. Embry an order which restrains her husband, Webb A. Embry from remarrying. This is said to be the first time in the history of Douglas county courts that such an order was granted.

Embry said that in 1919 he was granted a divorce in Des Moines but Mrs. Embry declared she had no knowledge of the divorce until recently, and that it was secured by fraud. She also declared that her husband has lived with her since June, 1920, and that even if the divorce is legal, she is still Embry's common law wife.

The couple were married in 1910. Embry deserted his wife in 1913, she said. In 1919 she located him in Des Moines and she sued for a divorce. He induced her to drop the suit and go to the Pacific coast, she said.

Soon after her departure, Embry secured a divorce by default. In June, 1920, he again joined her in Hilliard, Wash., and they have lived together intermiettntly ever since.

A short time ago, she said, Embry told her he was going to marry a girl "in her teens," and displayed his divorce for the first time.

ROTARIANS HEAR MUSIC

Fine Entertainment of Vocal and Instrumental Harmony Given Tuesday Noon.

The Lincoln Rotary club listened to a delightful musical program at its weekly meeting and luncheon at the Lincoln hotel Tuesday noon. Joe Garman, head of the program of entertainment for December, was congratulated on its character and excellence. The applause was hearty after every number.

The entertainers were members of the Cardin-Lieurance orchestra consisting of Fred Cardin of the Miami tribe of Indians of Oklahoma, violinist; William Eeddy, cellist of the Hydah tribe of Alaska, and Gladys Gooding, soprano. She sang "Bird of Love Divine." She also served as an accompanist. Elmer Hurling of Falls City accompanied by Miss Hazel Welking, sand two solos. Nic Brown, who called himself a "wandering traveling salesman" temporarily in Lincoln, gave several popular numbers on the harmonica." The Luce Sisters entertained with violin, cello and piano were other entertainers. The Indian music was enthusiastically received.

CHILDREN ASKING FOR FOOD

Writing to Santa for Comforts Instead of Toys, Chicago Postmaster Finds.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Food and clothing, and not toys, are the Christmas demands of children who are writing to Santa Claus this year.

They plead for comforts instead of luxuries.

"It is a bad year for kiddies," said Santa Claus, as personified by John T. McGrath, assistant general postmaster of Chicago, in an interview today.

"Letters piling up by the hundreds almost invariably sound pathetic pleadings for the necessities of life.

"In other years a large percentage of the letters asked for toys and candy. This year it is different."

Santa Claus delved into a huge pile of letters from children all over the country.

Many asked for clothes so they could go to school. Others wanted fuel or food.

"People are not as ready to help carry out the requests of the children as in previous years," Santa Claus lamented.

"Few have responded with volunteered help to many calls for assistance. However, we hope that every letter will be given attention before Christmas."

MUNY TREE AT CENTRAL CITY

Project Under Auspices of the Business Men's Club.

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Dec. 19.—A large municipal Christmas tree with a gift for every child in the community and special gifts for the needy will be the center of interest in this city Saturday evening December 23rd. This undertaking will be under the auspices of the Business Men's club and committees have been appointed to solicit the different business houses and all parties interested for gift donations. The Farmers club of this county, the American Legion and other organizations are very enthusiastic and are responding readily. Special gifts of clothing, shoes, etc., will be distributed by Santa to those in need of such articles. A number of Y. M. C. A. memberships will also be placed on the tree, in fact there will be a gift for every boy or girl there, not to mention a jolly, merry Santa and the biggest tree the county affords.

Automobile exports in November reached the highest point of the year.

A CASE OF COLD FEET

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT LITTLE COMPANION

Three-Year-Old Killed When Bobby Hide Thought Safety Lock Was on and Pulled Trigger.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 19.—Billy Ferenstein, three, was accidentally shot and killed by Bobbie Hyde, twelve, at the home of the baby boy's father, Max Ferenstein, 3528 North Fifty-fifth street, a machinist.

Billy was playing at a front window. Bobbie, stepson of Clifford Short, 3343 North Fifty-fifth street, an interior decorator, was on the front porch with Heinie Ferenstein, ten, brother of Billy. Bobbie had a .22 caliber rifle with which he had been hunting rabbits and shooting at tin cans.

Billy shouted gleefully at Bobbie. Bobbie playfully pointed the gun at the baby boy and, thinking that the safety lock was on, pulled the trigger.

Billy's mother heard the shot and ran to the window in time to clasp her child in her arms, where he died in twenty minutes without regaining consciousness. The bullet penetrated beneath the left side of the child's neck.

Bobbie, horror stricken, ran crying to his siter at his home but later returned to the Ferenstein home, where police found him weeping, on the front porch. The boy was taken to police headquarters and questioned about the shooting. He was released to appear at the coroner's inquest today.

Bobbie, thru his sobs, told police that Billy was his playmate and that he "didn't mean to do it."

The mothers of Bobbie and Billy wept together over the tragedy.

Bobbie has been a pl. mate of the Ferenstein boys. Recently Bobbie and Heinie have been making a radio set together.

CHIEF OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Harry Whiteside of Beatrice Has Narrow Escape From Death in Basement of Burning House.

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 19.—Chief Harry Whiteside of the Beatrice fire department, narrowly escaped death by asphixiation this morning while the department was engaged in subduing flames in the basement of the Charles Bartick home, North Ninth street. The chief was overcome by smoke while alone in the basement and barely succeeded in attracting other members of the department, who went to his rescue. The Bartick home was damaged to the extent of about $2,000.

TO EMPLOY RATE EXPERT

Grand Island Chamber to Retain Exclusive Service of Edward T. Ryan.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Dec. 19.—By a unanimus vote the board of twenty five directors of the chamber of commerce has adopted the report of a special committee favoring the employment of rate expert Edward T. Ryan by the chamber for the services of Grand Island exclusively, such services to be available to all members of the chamber doing any shipping. The board of governors is preceeding at once to prefect the details of the arrangement whereby Grand Island will present a solid front in efforts to obtain equitable rates.

STATE REJECTS ALL BIDS

Call for New Bids January 2 on Bakery at Institution for Feebleminded at Beatrice.

The board of control rejected all bids filed Tuesday for the construction of a bakery building at the institue for feeble-minded at Beatrice. New bids are to be called for January 2, the work to start April 1. Seven bids were received and all were considered too high in view of the estimated cost of $15,000 for a completed building with wiring, plumbing and heating. J. F. Roeser of Exeter had the lowest bid, his price for the building alone being $14,870. Ernest Rokahr of Lincoln had the highest bid considered, his being $18,300. Another bid for $23,056 was not accompanied by a check and was not considered.

A new hospital at the Beatrice institution is now being completed and will be ready for occupancy within sixty days, according to Dr. S. J. Stewart, superintendent of the institution.

BARROWS FOR CENSORSHIP

ACTING GOVERNOR DRAFTS BILL TO REGULATE MOVIES.

Proposes Board of Censors With Power to Cut Out Portrayal of Acts Involving Moral Turpitude.

Acting Governor Pelham A. Barrows was busy Tuesday morning in the governor's private office. There being no official business for an acting governor to transact Mr. Barrows had time to ponder upon the decision of the district court of Lancaster county which had decided he was not entitled to the $935.61 extra pay for serving as acting governor during the past four years, at the rate of $23.39 for each working day served.

Mr. Barrows will have his attorney appeal the case to the supreme court for a final decision as to his right to draw two salaries, one for serving as lieutenant governor and another for acting governor in the temporary absence of the governor from the state. Other matters than affairs of the executive office occupied Mr. Barrows' time. His desk was covered with typewritten sheets which he slowly reeled off from his typewriter. He is putting in the weary hours of idleness drafting a bill for the censorship of moving pictures in Nebraska. Governor McKelvie vetoed an act of that nature two years ago. At that time there was much agitation in favor of state censorship, tho the state senate passed a resolution favoring national censorship. Since then Will Hays has been drafted to clean up the movies and for the past year the picture industry has been moving along without much criticism.

Acting Governor Barrows several years ago was engaged for a time in the industry of exhibiting moving pictures in Lincoln. He admits that his experience qualifies him to prepare a censorship bill. His bill will provide for an appointive board of censors. Mr. Barrows has given no inkling of his desire to be one of the appointees if his bill passes.

He said his bill will embody many features of the bill passed by the lower branch of the Nebraska legislature two years ago. This bill was opposed in the state senate and that body desired to redraft and a substitute was offered by Senator H. C. Beebe of Polk, who is mentioned for appointment to a judgeship on the district bench.

The bill that finally passed both houses of the legislature was vetoed by Governor McKelvie at the close of the session. Acting Governor Barrows now confesses the reason he opposed the bill passed was of information he received that Governor McKelvie intended to veto it.

Mr. Barrows intends to ask the legislature to pass a bill for a board of censors. It will set out general directors for the guidance of censors by defining pictures to be prohibited. Any picture teaching bad morals or involving moral turpitude whatever that may mean in law. He would hold the distributor liable with the producer and would require the distributer to give bond not to violate the law.

ITALIAN FACTIONS BATTLE

Two Fascisti and Five Communists Die in Fight at Chamber of Labor, Turin.

TURIN, Dec. 19.—Two fascisti and five communists were killed and fifteen persons were wounded in a fight between these factions on the premises of the chamber of labor today. The offices of the communist daily, Ordine Neuvo, were burned.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

John Gillespie, a well known Nebraska pioneer, died at his home in Lincoln after suffering from lung trouble for two months. Mr. Gillespie's greatest work in the building of Nebraska was connected with the selection of a site for the new city of Lincoln and the removal of the seat of state government to the new location.

The United Commercial travelers' association held an initiation and brought Burt Brink, J. T. Thorpe and H. S. Hardwick safely into the organization.

H. S. Stoner received news of the death of P. A. Baush, a friend and former partner in business in Lincoln. They began the plastering business here in 1879.

Three inches of snow fell during the day, making sleigh riding and rabbit hunting the two popular outdoor sports.

The postmaster general had presented a plan for postal savings banks which was being discussed in the newspapers.

There was considerable discussion going on over Christian science. The sermons of two Lincoln ministers on the subject appeared, evidently in full, in the Journal.

The Gift that Lasts

RADIO IN THE HOME

BY HENRY M. NEELY.

Radio Frequency for the Honeycombs.

The amateur who installs the three honeycomb coil set described in the last article will find it a perfectly simple matter later to put ahead of it a stage of radio frequency amplification. This is designed to increase the distance over which a set will receive. This can be done without the use of an expensive transformer and the unit containing the step of radio frequency can be mounted in a panel that can be set alongside of the tuner and can be built to match it.

This is the best method of adding radio frequency amplification to a honeycomb coil set without a transformer.

This step of amplification uses what we call a "tuned plate" circuit and enables the operator to get amplification over a much wider band of wave lengths than is possible with a transformer.

The apparatus necessary for this step of radio frequency amplification follows:

Single mount for honeycomb coil.
Forty-three plate variable condenser.
Bulb socket.
Rheostat.
Amplifying bulb.
Honeycomb coils of various sizes.

In the diagram I am showing on the right-hand side the series parallel switch and the first honeycomb coil of the tuning set described in the last article. You will notice that the binding post to which the aerial is attached in the other set is now connected to the plate screw on the amplifying socket and the binding post to which the ground was attached in the other set is now connected to the 45-volt positive tap of the B battery.

In his circuit the series-parallel switch of the tuner must always be set on the parallel side, which means that the upper blades are turned to the left.

This arrangement is a very good one, but it is impossible to give exact dimensions of the honeycomb coils required. The secondary and tickler coils of the tuning set will remain they were before the addition of the radio frequency step, but the coil that was the primary will have to be changed and it is probable that the original primary coil can be inserted in the single mount of the radio frequency step.

It will also be found necessary to alter the relative positions of these three honeycomb coils in a way that is different from that without the radio frequency amplification, but a little practice will enable you to master the difficulties of this set and you will find that while nearby stations are not amplified in volume the distant ones will come in considerably louder.

You will also notice that the rheostat on the amplifying tube plays a very important part in this tuning and that there is a critical point of brilliancy at which the amplifying bulb burns where you will get the most amplification and turning the filament a little dimmer or a little brighter will make you lose it. You must be patient with this hook-up, but you will find it well worth while.

TOM SMITH'S GHOST WALKS

Man Wanted by Government and Believed Killed in Accident Found at Sioux City.

Tom Smith or his ghost popped up again Tuesday, this time in Sioux City, and government officers are trying to prove that he is still in the flesh and to bring him to Lincoln for trial.

Tom Smith was arrested more than a year ago on charges of violating the national prohibition act, and shortly afterward ran away, leaving his bondsmen holding the sack. Some months afterward he was reported to have been killed in an automobile accident near Sioux City, and affidavit to that effect was filed. The government was not satisfied, however, that this was the Smith in question and his case has been docketed for each successive term of district court.

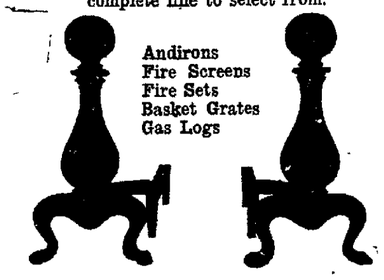

Chief Johnstone received word from Sioux City Monday evening that a Tom Smith had been picked up there, believed to be the man wanted in Lincoln. He sent the man's photograph and fingerprints to Sioux City for identifying him. The Sioux City police head told Marshal McClung Tuesday that the man was not in custody but could be picked up, and this he was requested to do. W. W. Towle, who was both attorney and bondsman for Smith, is sparing no effort to find out whether that his client is dead or that he is still roaming the earth, and has offered a reward for his apprehension.

Grain Market Opinions.

Lamson Bros.: Conditions remain generally bullish.
Riordan Martin: Look for further advance.
Bennett & Company: The bulls have the situation well in hand.
Logan & Bryan: General economic conditions favor advancing prices.
Stein Alstrin: We expect further advances in all grains.
Bartlett Frazier: Higher prices are indicated.
Thomson McKinnon: We feel the advance has not yet culminated.
Harris Winthrop: The winter acreage was larger than estimated but the condition lower.—Lamson.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The government report, looked extremely bearish. Snow commented as follows: "The government arbitrarily increased 1922 acreage and is evidently doing the same thing with the area indicated in this report. The condition in the second lowest on record. A low December condition usually means reduced yields at harvest.

Goodman commented. "The figures clarifly the final report of last Friday, showing that the 900,000 acres presumed to have been abandoned and 3 00,000 acres seeded last year which has since been discovered by a thoro inquiry of the farmers, has been included. The report as to the condition of wheat and rye is distinctly bullish."

The report of yesterday suggests a crop of 640,000,000 bushels to 695,000,000 bushels. —Lamson.

Expect Break in Wheat.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The trade expects a small break in wheat owing to the government report which is generally regarded as somewhat bearish. Good buying is likely to develop on any decline, however.

Governmon statistics have been revised so frequently in the last three years that they have lost weight with the trade.

Contract of wheat in public elevators in Chicago Saturday night aggregated 590,000 and increase for the week 110,000 bushels. Corn 1,543,000 bushels increase 600,00; Oats 830,000 increase 2,000.

Export sales yesterday estimated wheat 1,000,000 largely Manitobas and Durums. Holland bought some corn afloat.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Prices held well at the opening of the New York stock market today in face of the cold water thrown on the hopes of an immediate loan to Germany and Judge Gary's statement that the U. S. Steel corporation was not considering an extra dividend. Steel showed only a slight decline at 103¾.

Opening prices included: Utah 64⅞, up ⅛; New Haven, 20⅝; Pan-American, 85; Studebaker, 131¼, off ⅛; Bethlehem "B" 62⅞, up ⅛; U S steel 103¾, off ⅛; Sinclair 31½ up ⅛; Baldwin 126⅝, up ¼; Crucible 69 off 1; Reading 78⅝, off ⅛; Retail Stores 68¼, off ¼; Union Pacific 135¼, off ⅛; Southern Pacific 86⅛, up ⅛; Great Northern pfd 76⅛, off ½; Corn Products 129, off ¼.

After showing good resistance to initial selling, the general list gathered strength toward 11 a m. Speculative leaders recovered about a point from the early lows and special strength was shown by a number of individual stocks, particularly General Electric, which advanced to 186⅞ against Monday's low of 181½.

Stock Market Opinions.

Block Maloney: We thing recessions should be used to buy good stocks.
Lamson Bros.: The tone of the market is extremely strong.
Clark Childs: All department stocks look good.
Harris Winthrop: We might experience a reactionary period before the advance is again resumed.
Logan & Bryan: The market seemed to present a rather tired appearance yesterday.—Lamson.

Changing Traffic Streams.

The proprietor of a candy store at the edge of the retail section on the principal street of a western city noted with pleasure that business was spreading up the street beyond his store. This would make more people pass his doors and consequently he would sell more candy, to say nothing of making more money. He could look out at the front door and see the increase in automobile traffic, and he supposed that there was a similar increase in foot traffic. But for some reason he failed to sell any more candy. To the contrary, his sales dropped. He couldn't understand it. There were the new stores and theaters up beyond his shop pulling people in that direction. The street was as jammed with autos as Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. To see just how much foot traffic had increased, he put two men to work counting the pedestrians. He was shocked to learn that the traffic on his side of the street had decreased. He looked about for the cause of this and discovered that a block beyond him was a flatiron corner where the automobiles were so thick that the crossing was dangerous. People walking up the street purposely chose the other side because it happened that the dangerous traffic was only on the one side.

The candy man then grew intensely interested in the sad lot of the humble pedestrian. He went to the head of an accident insurance company and got him also interested. These two then went to the police department and demanded that for the sake of humanity a safety zone be established at the dangerous crossing to divert part of the automobile traffic and make it safe for humans to walk there. The police officials recognized that here was a citizen, actuated by the highest humanitarian motives, complaining of a menace that ought to be remedied. He ordered the safety zone established. Within a week the pedestrian traffic past the candy store had almost doubled and the candy sales showed a proportionate increase.—The Nation's Business.

Why She Married Him.

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

A woman weeps as she sits alone in an apartment—weeps for her lost youth and her lost hopes and her lost dreams, for she has had a nightmare of a life with the man she married and now he has run away. This is the tenth time.

And the woman weeps and she will weep many, many more times unless she strikes out for herself and realizes that the case is hopeless. If you should ask this woman why she married him, she will talk to you something like this:

"I just felt sorry for him. I could not help it. He seemed so helpless. He needed some one and was just like a child in many ways. He just seemed to do the wrong thing and then he was sorry for it.

"He would work a while and then get disgusted with his work, but when you buoyed him up he would be encouraged and do what was right and then he would go on a big drunk and I had that to go thru with.

"But when he was himself again he was very sweet and kind, and then the next thing he would get into some serious trouble and it would take weeks, months, to get out of the trouble. But the worst of it all is hat he was so strong-headed.

"He would do everything to keep from doing a thing, but he would do it again, and after it was all right he would regret it and you would feel sorry for him. And that was my trouble—feeling sorry for him all the time."

And she will go on feeling sorry for him until she begins to feel sorry for herself, and then she will give him an opportunity and let him satnd without her.

When he can prove that he is a man then is the time, and not until then, for her to take up the thread of things with hi magain.

Certainly every woman should do everything in the world to help her husband. She must stand by him thru thick and thin, but when it is always thin and there seems to be no hope and she begins to feel sorry for him, she will be sorry for him all the days of her life and nothing more.

In this particular case man ya time this man would beat the woman and afterward he would be on his knees apologizing.

He gave her a black eye. He called her every kind of name. He has threatened to kill her and then commit suicide and has heaped upon her all such cowardly abuses.

And yet in the end of it she is sorry for him. Several times he has run away and left her for months. But always when he comes back pleading, she is sorry, sorry, sorry.

And she will go on being sorry until the end of the chapter, and perhaps the end of her.

Until she feels a little bit sorry for herself she will be called upon to be sorry for him—forever.

Never marry a man because you are sorry for him or to reform him or to be a mother to him. The partnership has to be equal in give and take, and it you are always sorry for him you will give all and get nothing.

A Rise in Price.

Apprehension has been expressed in many quarters as to the deterrent effect which higher prices may have on consumers' purchases.

As an indication that such apprehension is well founded we cite a recent incident reported in the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

The matter has to do with harem slippers, such as had been selling for $1. When the price was raised to $1.25 the sales fell off. The advance was due to the arrival of seventeen cases of the slippers after the new tariff had gone into effect. Instead of costing the store 76 cents a pair, the slippers, under the new rate of duty, represented an outlay of an even dollar per pair.

So the retail price, as said, was boosted to a dollar and a quarter. But at the new figure nearly all the New Orleans women stopped buying. They couldn't see why slippers that had sold at $1 one week should not sell at the same figure a week after. Back went the price, therefore, to the even dollar, and the immediate result was that instead of sales of seven or eight pairs a day the 200 pairs per day mark was regained.

"But when this particular shipment of barem slippers is out of the way," the Times-Picayune informed its readers, "——well, you don't pay $1 for an article and sell it for $1 and make money in the retail trade."

We quote this incident for two reasons: First, it graphically illustrates a situation which ought to be carefully heeded by manufacturers in all lines; second, it shows what retailers can do in the way of getting the co-operation of their local newspapers in educating their public as to the facts relative to trade and price conditions.—Dry Goods Economist.

Picking Men.

Paul Starrett, head of the George F. Fuller, Co., New York, and builder of more than 100 of the largest skyscrapers in the country, asked to explain his success by a writer in Forbes Magazine replied: "I know how to pick men; I seldom pick a lemon. There is something between men when they look each other right in the eyes that cannot be explained. You just know. A man who looks you in the eye and has the guts will come thru."

"What qualities do you look for in men?"

"First of all, experience in our line, and judgment," he answered. "I like to take a man when he's young and have him grow up with me. I would advise him to marry early. A good woman is the best influence to keep a men steady. I also pick men who have good physiques, for the work is hard.

"One thing I don't want is a man who never makes mistakes. If he doesn't make mistakes he never does anything. All good men make a certain number of mistakes and, if they are the right sort, they build on them."

"How have you managed to keep the investors with you so closely," was another question. "How do you get these contracts when the other man underbids you?"

"When a man builds a building," he replied, "it is often the investment of his entire fortune. But whether the owner is one whose entire fortune is going into the building or not, I give but little thought to the matter of the other bids which may be compared with mine. I figure on a good, enduring structure and then build to that specification honestly and faithfully. To me each of my buildings has an individuality of its own. There is a personal side to this building business as well as a professional side. Buildings are monuments or they are just markers, I don't want to be a builder of markets."

Have You Cashed Your Victory Bonds?

Have you turned in to your banker for redemption the United States Victory Notes (fifth issue of Liberty bonds) which were called for payment last Friday? If not, you will lose interest on all time you delay from December 15, 1922, on.

One week ago it was officially estimated that of the 700 million dollars of these Victory bonds called not more than half of them had been presented for payment. Are you one of those who has failed to present your bonds through your bank for payment?

If you hold any of these bonds, and wish to keep your money at work and drawing interest, bring them to us. We can supply you in exchange for them any securities we have now in hand—First Mortgages on eastern Nebraska farm lands, or on Lincoln city real estate; Municipal Bonds, Corporation Bonds, Railroad Bonds, or Foreign Government Bonds. Or we can act as your agent in securing you the new issue of United States Treasury notes, 4½%, in exchange for your called Victory bonds.

Some Victory Bonds mature and will be paid next May. We will take them now at par in exchange for any of the securities we have now on sale. See or telephone Mr. Hadley about this.

LAND AND FARMS FOR SALE. 85

CALIFORNIA AND THE PACIFIC SOUTHWEST CALLS YOU—Countless thousands are being attracted to this land with its spring day climate which fills you with the joy of living at any season.

There is no other land so richly endowed with natural beauty, resources, and the things that make for health, wealth and the comforts of family and home as this country.

Within the past few years, under careful analysis of the soils and their adaptation to certain production, the lands of the Pacific mountain valleys have shown larger yields, better quality of products and greater returns per acre by far than any other section of the United States.

Our large and exclusive offering of valley lands in the Pacific southwest affords you an incomparable opportunity to procure a highly productive, delightful farm home in this wonderful country, which we believe has no equal in value of production per acre and profits in development. If you have $500 to $5,000 to invest, you can live comfortably and independently for the rest of your life.

Have a few good 40, 80 and 160 acres; can be sold on terms $10.00 per acre down, no other payment for five years, then twenty years more to pay at 6 per cent interest. Price $110 per acre with abundant paid-up water supply. Land produces large yields of grain, alfalfa seed, potatoes, fruit and beets of finest quality. Choicest fruit and grain lands in California sold in 20, 40 and 80 acre tracts. Terms, $25 to $50 per acre down; no other payment of interest or principal for five years, then ten more years to pay in at 6 per cent interest. Near good towns, paved highways and improved lands producing more than first cost each year and selling for $1,000 per acre and more. Price of this land—with good water supply—from $150 to $200 per acre. This is the same quality and lay of land selling for $1,000 per acre under development, and will do likewise.

Next excursion after Christmas; fares refunded to actual buyers. Arrange now to own a home in this country where there is growth and sunshine all year. Write us today—right now!

SIDE TALKS
(By Ruth Cameron.)

At the Teller's Window.

One morning recently I stepped into the branch office of a trust company in the residence district of a large city at about 10 o'clock.

At the deposit window there was no one. The only activity was at one window—the window of the paying teller. A line of smartly dressed women, constantly replenished by new arrivals, stood in front of this window, handing out checks to him to be cashed and stuffing the fascinating little bundles of crisp bills that he handed over to them into silver or beaded bags. This done, they turned toward the swinging door, giving swift (or not so swift) glances into a tactfully placed long mirror, passed out on the sidewalk and either climbed into waiting motors or walked smartly off, a few back toward the district of lovely homes from which they came, but many more toward the district of lovely shops

The Women Who Spend.

Is there any class in the world more favored of fortune than that of the American woman whose successful husband loves to wear as a badge of his own success her freedom from care and her command of luxury? That is, if one's idea of being favored of fortune is to get more than one gives. And that does seem to be the commonest, if not the truest, idea.

But tho with characteristic self-assurance they have taken about half my space the women who spend were not what I started to write about.

What struck me most forcibly as I watched those women march up to the payer's window and in exchange for bits of paper, on which they had written their names, receive packages of bills which in turn were probably to be converted into furs and silken lingerie and chocolate sundaes and amber beads and oriental rugs and babies' hand smocked dresses and a new collar for the chow, was the fascinating and appalling intricacy of our civilization.

Labor for Labor.

Each piece of paper probably represented a certain amount of that woman's husband's labor (of course it may have been her father's or her grandfather's) so many hours of his time. Somehow or other the value of that labor to the community has been judged and, thru the medium of dollars and cents, he has been made able to exchange it for the labor of other men and women, tho perhaps that other labor was performed 5,000 miles away. And then to make the system even more marvelous, checks take the place of dollars and cents and just by writing one's name on a piece of paper one can effect this exchange of one's time and labor for the time and labor of a French girl embroidering lingerie in a convent, or an oriental (perhaps dead a hundred years) who once made rugs.

Of all the wonders of modern civilization, the telephone, the wireless, the electric light, the aeroplane, the submarine, the water supplies, is there any one more marvelous than this vast system of exchange that we all take so utterly for granted.

And does anything make one realize more fully the danger of tampering too hastily with this infinitely intricate, infinitely delicate mechanism?

MEN AND THINGS

We will have better government when our representatives are able and willing to rid themselves of their party-mindedness. That's what is the trouble down at Washington. On every issue the cleavage of party lines is visible. This would not be strange where the great fundamental issues divide parties, because a man is a republican or democrat according as he believes upon these questions. But this is ridiculous where most of the bills are concerned. We have been steadily getting away from that in our state legislatures, and we will be better off when the reform spreads to the national halls.

The progressiveness of the Nebraska supreme court is beyond any question. Repeatedly in the past few years the court has shown its impatience with the pleas of lawyers who have come arguing for a new trial for a client because of errors occurring during the trial before a jury, usually technical in character. Every once in awhile the court mars this good record by a reversion back to technicalities, but on the whole it steadily goes forward. Its notice to the prosecutors of the state that simple, plain indictments are to be the rule hereafter is in line with the best progress. All that a defendant can ask of the state is that he be notified of the character of the crime charged, how it was done, when and where. When that form is followed all this rigmarole of motions to quash and the like will be abandoned.

A Lincoln man who owns some land out in the grazing district says he finds it impossible to weep any over the woes of the cattlemen, especially those in the immediate vicinity of his holdings. Every year these lands are grazed over by the owners of herds in the neighborhood, and not once in his period of ownership has one of them asked permission to do this, offered to pay anything for the privilege or shown the slightest inclination to do what is manifestly the right thing to do. He has had agents seek to collect rental, and has never had a dollar handed him for this privilege. He wonders how widespread this habit is.

Ordinarily it is difficult to enchain the attention of readers of books by furnishing them with autobiographies. Men who achieve enough fame to warrant them in writing the story of their lives seldom fail to pay due worship to the person most responsible for their success, which is themselves, and this makes rather irritating reading. They say, however, that Edward Bok made an interesting job out of it. But rich as he has become thru running a magazine for women, he says he is disillusioned. That means, we presume, that he has lost all those pleasant notions about men and things with which he began life. If wealth banishes these fancies from men's mind, we can find consolation for our poverty.

Most men who have not become warped by events, either of their own making or the result of misadventure, or by an inordinate love of money, like to contribute of their surplus means to every good cause that is presented to them. This generosity is being taken advantage of by a number of otherwise good people who have close to their heart some philanthropy of their own that is magnified in importance in their eyes. Because of that fact nearly every week now has a drive of its own.

A committee meets somewhere, decides a great need exists for this or that and announces its purpose of asking the public to subscribe an amount fixed by the committee. The people who are expected and asked to give have no part in determining the need or fixing the amount. The probability is that a much greater multiplication of these benevolences will produce a reaction in the public mind that will prove harmful to the future of those objects which have a direct claim upon our generosity.

WALT MASON

Iron Justice.

My cousin, Charles Augustus, is sore on modern justice, he makes an earnest wail; for he was pinched for speeding, and, heedless of his pleading, they sentenced him to jail. Before the peelers nailed him, before the jurist jailed him, he used to talk a lot about the locoed voters who speeded up their motors—their conduct made him hot. "Mere fines will never punish these speedsters wild and Hunnish," I often heard him say; "in prison let them languish; perchance such dole and anguish will make them change their way. No matter what their standing, I hope to see them landing in prison for their crimes; mere fines won't make them wriggle; they merely grin and giggle as they dig up the dimes." And after all this talking a peeler caught him rocking his old tin bus along, at fifty miles or faster, and since this dread disaster he says jail terms are wrong. "Our bulwarks are forgotten, our institutions rotten," he says, in sombre tones, "when people law-abiding are jailed for slowly riding, and fed on musty bones. Where is our boasted freedom when men who never speed 'em are pinched for driving cars, and jailed with common felons and fed on last year's melons, behind the rusty bars? I do not call it justice," says Cousin Charles Augustus, "when one of high estate, a man renowned in letters, is loaded down with fetters like some cheap tinhorn skate."

BRAIN TESTS

(By Sam Loyd.)

4 Minutes to Answer This.

Bobbie stopped to ask a bricklayer how much a brick weighed and the workman informed him as follows:

"A brick weighs three-fourths of a brick and three-fourths of a pound. Now tell me how many bricks there are to a hod if half a hod and half a brick weighs fourteen pounds less than three-fourths of a brick."

Bobbie suddenly discovered it was getting late for school so did not wait to figure out the answer.

Can you solve the workman's puzzle?

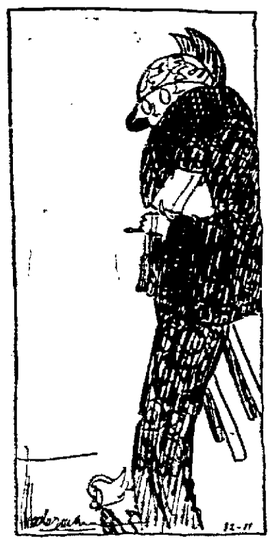

Answer to Yesterday's.

The two-circle design is drawn with a continuous line by following directions:

Take a piece of paper and fold corner, as A, in diagram. Then describe the small circle and continue line upon folded corner, as indicated by dotted line. Passing from folded corner, the larger circle is drawn around until it meets edge of folded corner. Then turn back folded corner and complete large circle. The design of two circles, one within the other, is thus drawn by a continuous line.
